Harriman Visit Aimed at Bloc, Observers Say

Diplomat Talks With Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia — Military Pact Is Believed Aimed at Russians by Southeastern Europe

Bled, Yugoslavia, Aug. 27 (AP)—Formation of a strong defensive bloc against Russian imperialism in southeastern Europe is believed here to have been the aim of W. Averell Harriman's weekend visit to Marshal Tito.

Harriman, President Truman's top-ranking diplomatic trouble shooter, paused in Yugoslavia Saturday and Sunday en route from Tehran, Iran, to London.

It is an open secret that the U. S., Britain and various other Atlantic Pact countries would like countries in this area—Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey and perhaps Italy—to draw together in a military alliance.

Collectively they could mount enough strength in fighting men and material to challenge, with American help, Soviet hopes of obtaining a controlling position in the Mediterranean.

Second Only to Russia

Yugoslavia has an army second in size only to Russia on the European continent; the Greek Army has been toughened by its experiences in the recently-ended civil war and is equipped by the U. S." The Turks always have proved formidable foes.

The U. S. State Department and joint chiefs of staff dreamed of such an alliance as long ago as 1946. At that time, Tito still was allied with the Kremlin.

Support for the alliance was demonstrated by congressional passage of the Greek-Turkey Aid Bill which bolstered anti-Russian morale in both countries.

With the split between Tito and Stalin the situation improved further.

Turns to West

Yugoslavia, while insisting on a neutral position, had to turn to the west for economic aid and military equipment no longer available from its one time Communist allies.

All these factors were brought out over the luncheon table Saturday where Harriman and Tito sat talking for five hours.

It is doubtful if the chain-smoking Harriman emphasized too strongly the U. S. desire for a southeast Europe alliance since he is well aware of how suspicious and resentful other countries are of American interference in their affairs. But it is probable that he emphasized to Tito that the spigots of American aid—both military and economic—would be opened wider if Yugoslavia will say frankly where it will stand in event of a third world war.

Suffolk to Meet To Choose County Chairman of GOP

Macy Says Defeat Better Than Compromise; Takes Crack at His Foes

Islip, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—The Suffolk County Republican Committee will meet Sept. 10 to select a successor to former Congressman W. Kingsland Macy as chairman.

Macy, county GOP leader for a quarter century, lost out at the primary last Tuesday when his forces were badly defeated.

Macy announced the meeting date on Saturday, when he conceded his primary defeat on the basis of complete returns. He was beaten last November when he ran for reelection to Congress in the First District, which normally is heavily Republican.

The former congressman, a bitre foe of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey within Republican ranks, said in a statement Saturday:

"I have experienced victory and defeat many times. Tuesday's election was but another round in the fight for clean, economical government.

Foresees Other Rounds

"This round has been lost. But other rounds will be fought. The fight will not be abandoned by those who believe that Suffolk county's independence as an important political unit must be maintained and that outside political interference by the Deweys and the Sprague must be resisted."

The reference was to J. Russell, Sprague, GOP county chairman in neighboring Nassau county and a

10 Persons Injured In Local Mishaps

Paul Houghtaling, 19, Is Most Seriously Hurt; Condition Critical

Ten persons were injured in week-end traffic mishaps in the city.

Most serious was one on Third avenue near Kingston street shortly after midnight Sunday in which Paul Houghtaling, 19, of 125 Hasbrouck avenue, was injured when a truck on which he was riding struck a pole. His condition was reported as "critical" at the Benedictine Hospital.

Although his injuries were not listed by the police, it was reported that he suffered injuries of the head, an arm, and the back.

The police report at 12:09 a. m. today said the truck, owned by John Troy, 184 North Manor avenue, was being operated by Gerald Peter Wenzel, 21, of Theresa Lane.

Houghtaling, the report said, was riding on the running board as the truck was headed north on Third avenue at a turn when it struck the tree "causing damage to the entire left side."

Officers Harold DeGraff and Raymond Wells were dispatched to the scene and a call was placed immediately for a Conner ambulance. The truck was towed from the scene.

Taken to Hospital

George Schatzel, of Abeel street, was also taken to the Benedictine Hospital for treatment of a head injury and a cut on the right hand following another accident on West O'Reilly street near the Twaalfskill Golf Club road early Sunday.

The report at 2:07 a. m., by Officers Raymond Wells and James Harbeck said a car owned and operated by Thomas Hughes, whose address was listed as Mount Holly, N. J., and 368 Broadway, Kingston, was headed

Austin Says UNForming PeaceForce

Purpose Is to Resist Aggression and Says Kremlin Must Rule Alternative

23 Back Plan

Other Nations Expected to Join in Training for Emergencies

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Warren R. Austin, U. S. representative to the United Nations, said today that organization of a permanent UN "peace force" to resist aggression is underway "at this very hour."

He said it is up to the Kremlin to decide whether "a coalition against aggression and a coalition against the Soviet Union shall be one and the same."

Austin addressed the 62nd national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, here for a week-long convention.

The convention, which opened yesterday, already has before it a resolution urging President Truman to act in the case of William Oatis, Associated Press correspondent imprisoned in Communist Czechoslovakia on spy charges. A vote is scheduled for tomorrow, with overwhelming passage predicted.

Asks Special Units

Austin said in his prepared message that the General Assembly of UN has asked member states to maintain specially-trained units within their armed forces for quick service "as United Nations forces." He said 23 nations had supported the move "and others are certain to join."

Administration problems of such a group can be handled "on the basis of practical experience," he said.

"A committee on collective measures is at work this very hour building on the lessons on this experience," he added. "Its work can point the way to collective action against any future aggressor."

Austin strongly defended the UN against charges that the organization has failed.

Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri of New York welcomed the delegates and their wives and said the VFW has been "a potent force for good in peace and war for more than a half-centruy."

Price War Flares

Newark, N. J., Aug 27 (AP)—A gasoline price war flared up in northern New Jersey today as stations slashed prices as much as six cents below normal. John Dressler, president of the New Jersey Gasoline Retailers Association, said yesterday the war is more serious than the one last summer. He predicted that stations will close down if the situation spreads.

BPW to Receive Bids

The Board of Public Works will receive bids until 3 p. m. Thursday on the drilling of two shafts and other construction work in the building of the Elizabeth street sewer project. Two shafts 87 feet below the surface will be dug at Washington avenue and Elizabeth street in conjunction with the project which will make use of an existing Washington avenue tunnel. The board meets in regular session at 2 p. m. Thursday.

Northrop Hurt At Marbletown

Fred H. Northrop, 34, of 45 Hemlock avenue, was seriously injured about 4:30 p. m. Sunday along Route 209 at Marbletown, the sheriff's office reported. Taken to Kingston Hospital by Conner's ambulance, Northrop was reported in "fair" condition today.

The sheriff's office was notified from the Marbletown Tavern after Harry Sahler of Hurley reported that he was driving slowly in a northerly direction on Route 209 when he heard something hit the rear left fender of his automobile. Sahler told authorities he looked back and discovered Northrop lying on the roadway.

Deputy Sheriffs William Thompson and Everett Lyons began the investigation, which is continuing.

Less Amity For India Is Noticeable

New Policy to Be Used Toward Nation Due to Nehru's Refusal to Sign Treaty

Is Help to Moscow

Indian Stand Is Based on Independence, Is Minister's View

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP) — A new and less benevolent American policy toward India appeared certain today to result from Prime Minister Nehru's refusal to sign a United States-backed peace treaty with Japan.

American officials made no secret of their bitter disappointment at India's public denunciation of the proposed treaty draft, coming as it did only nine days before the start of a formal 50-nation peace conference in San Francisco Sept. 4.

India's arguments for boycotting the signing, officials here said, seemed to echo Russia's long standing objections, and give powerful, timely ammunition to a new Moscow propaganda drive to wreck the Japanese treaty.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told Parliament today that India will sign a separate treaty with Japan as soon as Japan has achieved independent status.

Nehru, whose treaty statement brought cheers from Parliament, did not say what he meant by "independent status." However, it was explained later that he was referring to Japan's position after the signing and ratification of the San Francisco treaty.

Separate Pact Ahead

A separate pact between the U. S. and Japan is expected to be signed after the main peace treaty is disposed of. That pact would provide a new legal basis for keeping U. S. troops in Japan for its defense.

The State Department yesterday made public India's decision not to sign the U. S. backed treaty along with an accompanying American rejection of India's arguments.

A 35-member Russian delegation, meanwhile, was on the high seas bound for the United States. Headed by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, the Soviets are expected to unleash an all-out propaganda barrage at the pact at San Francisco and then stage a walkout.

In Moscow, the Soviet government newspaper attacked the proposed treaty as an American attempt to set Japan against other Asian peoples and make it into an American colony.

46 Nations Expected

At least 46 nations are expected by American diplomats to approve the peace pact despite Russia's threats. Only Burma and Yugoslavia so far have joined India in refusing to sign.

Key State Department officials said they are convinced the timing and nature of India's criticisms were not set to give added punch to Moscow's expected propaganda offensive.

Rather, they attributed it to what some of them view as a misguided effort by Nehru to steer a neutral course in the east-west conflict and emerge as leader of the Asiatic democracies.

These officials indicated to a reporter that the State Department intends to substitute tougher diplomatic tactics for the almost unlimited patience and kindness it has displayed in dealing with Nehru so far.

Reasons Cited

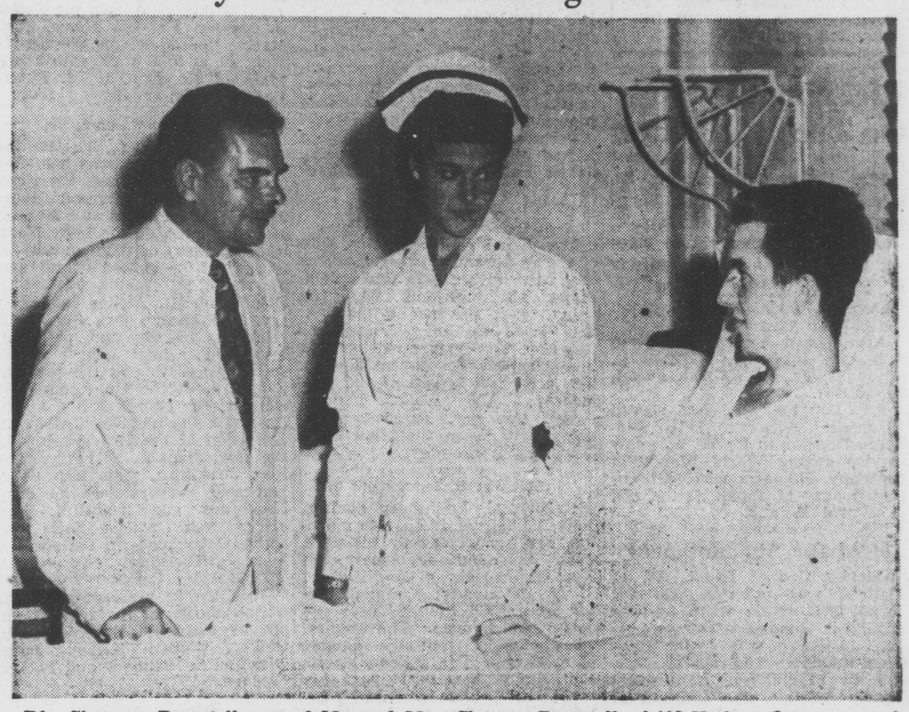

In rejecting its conference invitation, India assailed the final treaty draft because it:

1. Fails to turn over Formosa to Communist China.
2. Does not confirm Russia's

Dewey Visits Wounded Kingston Marine

Pfc. Sherman Bonestell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bonestell, of 102 Hasbrouck avenue, probably has had plenty of surprises since enlisting in the Marine Corps in November, 1950, but the biggest one of all, no doubt, was his surprise talk with Governor Thomas E. Dewey in a U. S. Naval Hospital in Yokosuka, Japan, recently. Gov. Dewey visited the local Leatherneck during his whirlwind flying tour of the Orient. The local Marine veteran was wounded in Korea June 10 while serving with the First Marine Division. Also shown with Gov. Dewey and Pfc. Bonestell is Lt. Ridgway's Denial Not Acceptable

Communists Also Say General's Reply Had Malicious Slander of Charging Frameup

Own Views Lauded

Only Their Viewpoint Is Reasonable, Message Says

Tokyo, Tuesday, Aug. 28 (AP)—The Communist high command today rejected as "entirely unsatisfactory" Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's latest message on the breakdown of Korean truce talks.

The rejection of the UN commander's message of Saturday was broadcast in Chinese by the Peiping radio and heard in Tokyo early this morning.

Ridgway had denied the Reds' charges of allied violations of neutrality at the Kaesong conference site as "malicious falsehoods" but had offered to resume negotiations which the Reds broke off Aug. 23.

Today's Red message of rejection was signed by Kim Il Sung, Northern Korean premier, and Gen. Peng Teh-huai, Chinese Red commander in Korea.

Reply Acknowledged

The message as broadcast in Chinese and translated into English by Tokyo listeners, said:

"General Ridgway:

"Your reply dated the 25th has been received. In this letter you not only deny the serious provocative, illegal penetration by a plane of your side over the Kaesong neutral zone on the night of Aug. 22, which carried out bombing and strafing of the residence of our delegation as its target, but you also unreasonably refused to settle this matter carefully and responsibly.

"Moreover, you uttered the malicious slander that this incident was manufactured by our side, thus attempting to evade the heavy responsibility for this incident which should be borne by your side.

"We regard this reply as entirely unsatisfactory."

The message went on to accuse Ridgway of failing to settle "all questions of breaches and violations of the Kaesong neutral zone agreement.

On the other hand, it said, "our side has always adopted a careful and responsible attitude on the principle of equality, in order that the negotiations may go ahead smoothly."

Flies to Korea

Tokyo, Aug. 27 (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway flew to Korea today to confer with the United Nations cease-fire negotiators.

There was no immediate indication of what was discussed. He returned to Tokyo tonight, after less than four hours in Korea.

The Communists have not yet publicly replied to his message of last Saturday in which he left the resumption of Korean-war cease fire talks directly up to them. Reds broke off the negotiations Thursday, charging that an allied warplane attacked Kaesong to "murder" Red delegates.

Red China's Peiping radio has acknowledged receipt of the sharp message from the supreme allied commander. It is possible the Reds replied directly to the advance headquarters at Munsan. Such Communist communications are usually broadcast over Peiping radio at about the same time.

Peiping radio had no such broadcast today.

Instead, the official voice of Red China devoted most of the day to bitter charges that United Nations warplanes and "plainclothesmen again had violated" Kaesong's neutrality, and that American planes had flown over China's coastal cities.

Probe Is Expected

Near the end of the day, the Red radio said the Communists are still expecting Allied liaison officers and newsmen to go to Kaesong to investigate Wednesday's alleged bombing.

Allied officers went to Kaesong and checked the report in the early morning hours Thursday immediately after the Red charge was made by radio telephone to Munsan.

Later, Supreme Headquarters in Tokyo said "the whole incident is a frameup from first to last."

Peiping tonight said the U. N.

Fred Cole, 70, Was Taken to Hospital Aug. 19 Hit by Cycle

Fred Mandiville Cole, 70, of Union Center, died at Kingston Hospital at 5:15 a. m. today. He had been a patient at the hospital since August 19, when he was struck by a bicycle while he was walking on the Union Center-Rifton highway, according to a sheriff's office report.

Cole's injuries reported after the accident a week ago included a fractured skull, fractured arm and other injuries.

The aged man was struck about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Aug. 19, by a bicycle operated by Roger Guzman, 18, of Union Center, according to the report filed with the sheriff's office.

Guzman told authorities that Cole apparently became confused at the approach of the cycle. The cyclist swerved first to one side and then back in an attempt to avoid the pedestrian, but Cole turned into the path of the cycle and was struck, Guzman reported. The accident occurred on a steep hill.

He is survived by a brother, Frank Cole, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and a niece, Mrs. Robert E. Murphy, of St. Petersburg. The funeral will be held from the Union Center Community Church Wednesday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in the Riverview Cemetery, Port Ewen. The body is now at the parlors of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street.

Union Leaders Ask President Take Over as Talks Break Down

(By The Associated Press)

America's strategic copper industry ground to a halt today. Union leaders asked President Truman to take it over when last-minute negotiations failed to avert a strike.

As a 7 a. m. (local time) deadline moved across the nation, members of the Independent International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers went off the job.

Hit first were the smelters on the east coast, then those in the midwest. Picket lines were set up. No violence was reported. Union members at the big Barber, N. J., American Smelting and Refining plant said local negotiations also were off, at least for the time being.

Request Telegraphed

They announced the appeal a few minutes after mediation talks in Washington, D. C., broke up after more than 12 hours of negotiation.

The IUMMSW officers also announced that the strike of 58,000 union members scheduled for 7 a. m. (local time) today would begin as set.

The Washington meeting, sponsored by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, was aimed at averting a strike scheduled for Kennecott Copper Company properties in Utah.

If acceptable to representatives of the company, AFL unions and the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, a government peace proposal was expected to have provided a pattern for avoiding the nationwide non-ferrous met-

Plane Trip Ends In Mishap to Prop

Everett Wood of Swarthmore, Pa., and his son, Peter, en route in a private airplane from Saranac Lake to Philadelphia, found their trip interrupted by a broken propeller when they decided to land on a Mt. Tremper area hayfield Sunday afternoon to visit relatives in Woodstock, state police reported.

Something in the landing gear of the Piper cruiser gave way during the landing on a hayfield belonging to Morris Brandmark, causing the craft to nose down, breaking the propeller and damaging a wing tip, Sgt. Arthur A. Reilly reported. No one was injured. The son, Peter Wood, was piloting the plane at the time, Sgt. Reilly said.

The plane was dismantled and taken home in a truck.

Patrol Fights Reds 3 Hours AtPyonggang

(By The Associated Press)

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Aug. 27 (AP)—An allied patrol clashed with Red troops in a three-hour skirmish today in the old Iron Triangle in North Korea.

The fight came as the UN troops probed the former Red assembly area almost to its northernmost tip at Pyonggang.

Along the rest of the front only minor engagements were reported.

The bad weather reduced the allied air attacks on Communist convoys bringing men and supplies to the front lines. Only 200 sorties were flown.

AP Correspondent George A. McArthur reported allied infantrymen were in sight of Pyonggang when they ran into a company of Reds. Communist machineguns and mortars pinned the allies down on the slope of a hill. After calling for artillery support, the patrol stormed and captured the hill. It was driven off by counterattacking Reds with mortar support.

Breaks Off Engagement

The patrol broke off the engagement late in the afternoon and returned to the UN lines, still under sporadic machinegun and mortar fire.

Poor visibility almost eliminated observation of Red movements on the east central front. In that area hundreds of troops were seen heading south in the past few days.

Fifth Air Force pilots reported they destroyed or damaged nearly 1,200 Red vehicles in the last three days.

Monday's aerial offensive on the jammed highway network of Red Korea netted 31 vehicles. Also listed as damaged or destroyed were one road bridge, one tunnel, one anti-aircraft gun emplacement and one artillery position.

Hearst-Davies Agreement Has No Authority, Administrators of Publisher's Estate Declare

Los Angeles, Aug. 27 (AP)—A paper supposedly giving former actress Marion Davies voting control of publisher William Randolph Hearst's enterprises "has no more effect than if it never existed," special administrators of his estate contend.

Reports have been published here that Miss Davies and Hearst signed an agreement Nov. 5, 1950, under which they were to be the only two trustees in a voting trust for the stock of the Hearst Corp., holding company for the publisher's vast enterprises.

Under the agreement, Hearst and Miss Davies pooled their stock for voting purposes and in the event of the death of either, the other should vote the entire stock for his or her lifetime, said the published reports.

Hearst owned the entire 100,000 shares of Hearst Corp. common stock and 170,000 shares of preferred, with Miss Davies owning 30,000 shares of preferred stock.

Henry S. Mackay, Jr., and Randolph Appearson Hearst, special administrators of the publisher's estate, which is scheduled for probate hearing today, issued a statement late yesterday saying they have known about what they term "the so-called agreement" of Nov. 5, 1950.

They said that although published reports have the paper making Miss Davies sole voting trustee in control of all the Hearst property, "this so-called agreement was never executed and for this and many other reasons has no more effect than if it never existed."

The agreement in question reportedly was drawn by Gregson Bautzer, Hollywood attorney, but he declined comment, saying any legal work he may have handled for Hearst was in the confidential lawyer-client status. Miss Davies' residence in Beverly Hills said she was unavailable for comment.

Miss Davies, who went directly from a convent to a New York musical as a dancer in 1916, was starred in the movies in the 1920's by Hearst-controlled film companies. She was the publisher's confidante for many years.

Hearst's will established three trusts, one for his widow, Mrs. Millicent Willson Hearst, from whom he had long lived apart; one for his five sons, and another for charitable and similar enterprises. The five sons and eight business associates, Mackay among them, were named trustees.

The will, supplemented by nine codicils, was drawn May 20, 1947. One codicil said he had given Miss Davies the Beverly Hills home where he died Aug. 14. Another codicil revoked the gift, however. Her lawyer explained that she originally purchased the home, deeded it to Hearst, and that he gave it back to her. The lawyer said she holds the deed.

Assault Aircraft Is Seen As Paratroop Replacement

By DON WHITEHEAD

Fort Bragg, N. C., Aug. 27 (AP)—Army and air force generals predicted today that mass paratroop jumps by airborne infantry soon may be outmoded by big assault landing aircraft.

They were impressed by the first tests of the C-122 as a fast carrier of heavy equipment in the war games which reached their final phase here this morning. And they see no reason why infantrymen couldn't be landed with the efficiency.

The mass jumps and dropping of heavy equipment by parachutes are daring and spectacular—but sometimes they are costly in both men and equipment even under ideal conditions.

Lt. Gen John Hodge, commander of the maneuvers, told reporters he believes the C-122 assault aircraft has "tremendous possibilities" for transporting both men and equipment into battle.

Must Develop Carrier

"We should do all we can to develop the assault landing craft," he said.

Is Help to Moscow

Indian Stand Is Based on Independence, Is Minister's View

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP) — A new and less benevolent American policy toward India appeared certain today to result from Prime Minister Nehru's refusal to sign a United States-backed peace treaty with Japan.

American officials made no secret of their bitter disappointment at India's public denunciation of the proposed treaty draft, coming as it did only nine days before the start of a formal 50-nation peace conference in San Francisco Sept. 4.

India's arguments for boycotting the signing, officials here said, seemed to echo Russia's long standing objections, and give powerful, timely ammunition to a new Moscow propaganda drive to wreck the Japanese treaty.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told Parliament today that India will sign a separate treaty with Japan as soon as Japan has achieved independent status.

Nehru, whose treaty statement brought cheers from Parliament, did not say what he meant by "independent status." However, it was explained later that he was referring to Japan's position after the signing and ratification of the San Francisco treaty.

Separate Pact Ahead

A separate pact between the U. S. and Japan is expected to be signed after the main peace treaty is disposed of. That pact would provide a new legal basis for keeping U. S. troops in Japan for its defense.

The State Department yesterday made public India's decision not to sign the U. S. backed treaty along with an accompanying American rejection of India's arguments.

A 35-member Russian delegation, meanwhile, was on the high seas bound for the United States. Headed by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, the Soviets are expected to unleash an all-out propaganda barrage at the pact at San Francisco and then stage a walkout.

In Moscow, the Soviet government newspaper attacked the proposed treaty as an American attempt to set Japan against other Asian peoples and make it into an American colony.

46 Nations Expected

At least 46 nations are expected by American diplomats to approve the peace pact despite Russia's threats. Only Burma and Yugoslavia so far have joined India in refusing to sign.

Key State Department officials said they are convinced the timing and nature of India's criticisms were not set to give added punch to Moscow's expected propaganda offensive.

Rather, they attributed it to what some of them view as a misguided effort by Nehru to steer a neutral course in the east-west conflict and emerge as leader of the Asiatic democracies.

These officials indicated to a reporter that the State Department intends to substitute tougher diplomatic tactics for the almost unlimited patience and kindness it has displayed in dealing with Nehru so far.

Reasons Cited

In rejecting its conference invitation, India assailed the final treaty draft because it:

1. Fails to turn over Formosa to Communist China.
2. Does not confirm Russia's

Northrop Hurt At Marbletown

Fred H. Northrop, 34, of 45 Hemlock avenue, was seriously injured about 4:30 p. m. Sunday along Route 209 at Marbletown, the sheriff's office reported. Taken to Kingston Hospital by Conner's ambulance, Northrop was reported in "fair" condition today.

The sheriff's office was notified from the Marbletown Tavern after Harry Sahler of Hurley reported that he was driving slowly in a northerly direction on Route 209 when he heard something hit the rear left fender of his automobile. Sahler told authorities he looked back and discovered Northrop lying on the roadway.

Deputy Sheriffs William Thompson and Everett Lyons began the investigation, which is continuing.

Hearst-Davies Agreement Has No Authority, Administrators of Publisher's Estate Declare

Los Angeles, Aug. 27 (AP)—A paper supposedly giving former actress Marion Davies voting control of publisher William Randolph Hearst's enterprises "has no more effect than if it never existed," special administrators of his estate contend.

Reports have been published here that Miss Davies and Hearst signed an agreement Nov. 5, 1950, under which they were to be the only two trustees in a voting trust for the stock of the Hearst Corp., holding company for the publisher's vast enterprises.

Under the agreement, Hearst and Miss Davies pooled their stock for voting purposes and in the event of the death of either, the other should vote the entire stock for his or her lifetime, said the published reports.

Hearst owned the entire 100,000 shares of Hearst Corp. common stock and 170,000 shares of preferred, with Miss Davies owning 30,000 shares of preferred stock.

Henry S. Mackay, Jr., and Randolph Appearson Hearst, special administrators of the publisher's estate, which is scheduled for probate hearing today, issued a statement late yesterday saying they have known about what they term "the so-called agreement" of Nov. 5, 1950.

They said that although published reports have the paper making Miss Davies sole voting trustee in control of all the Hearst property, "this so-called agreement was never executed and for this and many other reasons has no more effect than if it never existed."

The agreement in question reportedly was drawn by Gregson Bautzer, Hollywood attorney, but he declined comment, saying any legal work he may have handled for Hearst was in the confidential lawyer-client status. Miss Davies' residence in Beverly Hills said she was unavailable for comment.

Miss Davies, who went directly from a convent to a New York musical as a dancer in 1916, was starred in the movies in the 1920's by Hearst-controlled film companies. She was the publisher's confidante for many years.

Hearst's will established three trusts, one for his widow, Mrs. Millicent Willson Hearst, from whom he had long lived apart; one for his five sons, and another for charitable and similar enterprises. The five sons and eight business associates, Mackay among them, were named trustees.

The will, supplemented by nine codicils, was drawn May 20, 1947. One codicil said he had given Miss Davies the Beverly Hills home where he died Aug. 14. Another codicil revoked the gift, however. Her lawyer explained that she originally purchased the home, deeded it to Hearst, and that he gave it back to her. The lawyer said she holds the deed.

Dewey Visits Wounded Kingston Marine

Pfc. Sherman Bonestell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bonestell, of 102 Hasbrouck avenue, probably has had plenty of surprises since enlisting in the Marine Corps in November, 1950, but the biggest one of all, no doubt, was his surprise talk with Governor Thomas E. Dewey in a U. S. Naval Hospital in Yokosuka, Japan, recently. Gov. Dewey visited the local Leatherneck during his whirlwind flying tour of the Orient. The local Marine veteran was wounded in Korea June 10 while serving with the First Marine Division. Also shown with Gov. Dewey and Pfc. Bonestell is Lt. (jg) Betty Taylor, of Dallas, Tex., a nurse at the naval hospital. (Official U. S. Navy Photograph).

Union Center Man Dies of Injuries

Fred Cole, 70, Was Taken to Hospital Aug. 19 Hit by Cycle

Fred Mandiville Cole, 70, of Union Center, died at Kingston Hospital at 5:15 a. m. today. He had been a patient at the hospital since August 19, when he was struck by a bicycle while he was walking on the Union Center-Rifton highway, according to a sheriff's office report.

Cole's injuries reported after the accident a week ago included a fractured skull, fractured arm and other injuries.

The aged man was struck about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Aug. 19, by a bicycle operated by Roger Guzman, 18, of Union Center, according to the report filed with the sheriff's office.

Guzman told authorities that Cole apparently became confused at the approach of the cycle. The cyclist swerved first to one side and then back in an attempt to avoid the pedestrian, but Cole turned into the path of the cycle and was struck, Guzman reported. The accident occurred on a steep hill.

He is survived by a brother, Frank Cole, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and a niece, Mrs. Robert E. Murphy, of St. Petersburg. The funeral will be held from the Union Center Community Church Wednesday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in the Riverview Cemetery, Port Ewen. The body is now at the parlors of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street.

Plane Trip Ends In Mishap to Prop

Everett Wood of Swarthmore, Pa., and his son, Peter, en route in a private airplane from Saranac Lake to Philadelphia, found their trip interrupted by a broken propeller when they decided to land on a Mt. Tremper area hayfield Sunday afternoon to visit relatives in Woodstock, state police reported.

Something in the landing gear of the Piper cruiser gave way during the landing on a hayfield belonging to Morris Brandmark, causing the craft to nose down, breaking the propeller and damaging a wing tip, Sgt. Arthur A. Reilly reported. No one was injured. The son, Peter Wood, was piloting the plane at the time, Sgt. Reilly said.

The plane was dismantled and taken home in a truck.

Union Leaders Ask President Take Over as Talks Break Down

(By The Associated Press)

America's strategic copper industry ground to a halt today. Union leaders asked President Truman to take it over when last-minute negotiations failed to avert a strike.

As a 7 a. m. (local time) deadline moved across the nation, members of the Independent International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers went off the job.

Hit first were the smelters on the east coast, then those in the midwest. Picket lines were set up. No violence was reported. Union members at the big Barber, N. J., American Smelting and Refining plant said local negotiations also were off, at least for the time being.

Request Telegraphed

They announced the appeal a few minutes after mediation talks in Washington, D. C., broke up after more than 12 hours of negotiation.

The IUMMSW officers also announced that the strike of 58,000 union members scheduled for 7 a. m. (local time) today would begin as set.

The Washington meeting, sponsored by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, was aimed at averting a strike scheduled for Kennecott Copper Company properties in Utah.

If acceptable to representatives of the company, AFL unions and the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, a government peace proposal was expected to have provided a pattern for avoiding the nationwide non-ferrous met-

Patrol Fights Reds 3 Hours At Pyonggang

(By The Associated Press)

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Aug. 27 (AP)—An allied patrol clashed with Red troops in a three-hour skirmish today in the old Iron Triangle in North Korea.

The fight came as the UN troops probed the former Red assembly area almost to its northernmost tip at Pyonggang.

Along the rest of the front only minor engagements were reported.

AP Correspondent George A. McArthur reported allied infantrymen were in sight of Pyonggang when they ran into a company of Reds. Communist machineguns and mortars pinned the allies down on the slope of a hill. After calling for artillery support, the patrol stormed and captured the hill. It was driven off by counterattacking Reds with mortar support.

Breaks Off Engagement

The patrol broke off the engagement late in the afternoon and returned to the UN lines, still under sporadic machinegun and mortar fire.

Poor visibility almost eliminated observation of Red movements on the east central front. In that area hundreds of troops were seen heading south in the past few days.

Fifth Air Force pilots reported they destroyed or damaged nearly 1,200 Red vehicles in the last three days.

Monday's aerial offensive on the jammed highway network of Red Korea netted 31 vehicles. Also listed as damaged or destroyed were one road bridge, one tunnel, one anti-aircraft gun emplacement and one artillery position.

Assault Aircraft Is Seen As Paratroop Replacement

By DON WHITEHEAD

Fort Bragg, N. C., Aug. 27 (AP)—Army and air force generals predicted today that mass paratroop jumps by airborne infantry soon may be outmoded by big assault landing aircraft.

They were impressed by the first tests of the C-122 as a fast carrier of heavy equipment in the war games which reached their final phase here this morning. And they see no reason why infantrymen couldn't be landed with the efficiency.

The mass jumps and dropping of heavy equipment by parachutes are daring and spectacular—but sometimes they are costly in both men and equipment even under ideal conditions.

Lt. Gen John Hodge, commander of the maneuvers, told reporters he believes the C-122 assault aircraft has "tremendous possibilities" for transporting both men and equipment into battle.

Must Develop Carrier

"We should do all we can to develop the assault landing craft," he said.

Ridgway's Denial Not Acceptable

Communists Also Say General's Reply Had Malicious Slander of Charging Frameup

Own Views Lauded

Only Their Viewpoint Is Reasonable, Message Says

Tokyo, Tuesday, Aug. 28 (AP)—The Communist high command today rejected as "entirely unsatisfactory" Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's latest message on the breakdown of Korean truce talks.

The rejection of the UN commander's message of Saturday was broadcast in Chinese by the Peiping radio and heard in Tokyo early this morning.

Ridgway had denied the Reds' charges of allied violations of neutrality at the Kaesong conference site as "malicious falsehoods" but had offered to resume negotiations which the Reds broke off Aug. 23.

Today's Red message of rejection was signed by Kim Il Sung, Northern Korean premier, and Gen. Peng Teh-huai, Chinese Red commander in Korea.

Reply Acknowledged

The message as broadcast in Chinese and translated into English by Tokyo listeners, said:

"General Ridgway:

"Your reply dated the 25th has been received. In this letter you not only deny the serious provocative, illegal penetration by a plane of your side over the Kaesong neutral zone on the night of Aug. 22, which carried out bombing and strafing of the residence of our delegation as its target, but you also unreasonably refused to settle this matter carefully and responsibly.

"Moreover, you uttered the malicious slander that this incident was manufactured by our side, thus attempting to evade the heavy responsibility for this incident which should be borne by your side.

"We regard this reply as entirely unsatisfactory."

The message went on to accuse Ridgway of failing to settle "all questions of breaches and violations of the Kaesong neutral zone agreement.

On the other hand, it said, "our side has always adopted a careful and responsible attitude on the principle of equality, in order that the negotiations may go ahead smoothly."

Flies to Korea

Tokyo, Aug. 27 (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway flew to Korea today to confer with the United Nations cease-fire negotiators.

There was no immediate indication of what was discussed. He returned to Tokyo tonight, after less than four hours in Korea.

The Communists have not yet publicly replied to his message of last Saturday in which he left the resumption of Korean-war cease fire talks directly up to them. Reds broke off the negotiations Thursday, charging that an allied warplane attacked Kaesong to "murder" Red delegates.

Red China's Peiping radio has acknowledged receipt of the sharp message from the supreme allied commander. It is possible the Reds replied directly to the advance headquarters at Munsan. Such Communist communications are usually broadcast over Peiping radio at about the same time.

Peiping radio had no such broadcast today.

Instead, the official voice of Red China devoted most of the day to bitter charges that United Nations warplanes and "plainclothesmen again had violated" Kaesong's neutrality, and that American planes had flown over China's coastal cities.

Probe Is Expected

Near the end of the day, the Red radio said the Communists are still expecting Allied liaison officers and newsmen to go to Kaesong to investigate Wednesday's alleged bombing.

Allied officers went to Kaesong and checked the report in the early morning hours Thursday immediately after the Red charge was made by radio telephone to Munsan.

Later, Supreme Headquarters in Tokyo said "the whole incident is a frameup from first to last."

Peiping tonight said the U. N.

HATS and SHOES

I'd rather be a funny hat
Than be the smartest shoe
For shoes see only pavements flat
With passing feet in view.

A hat may startle passers-by
And oftentimes it will
Yet hats may view the starlit sky
Beyond the highest hill.
A hat may feel the sudden rain
While still it's fresh and sweet
But shoes must bear the added strain
Along the muddy street.

I simply mean that life is bright
If one keeps looking up
For looking down suggests the night
And trouble's brimming cup.
The world can be a joyful place
If joy is what we choose
For we must daily pause to face
The choice . . . of hats . . . or shoes.

While the body reposed in the home, over a thousand family acquaintances passed the bier or knelt in silent prayer for the repose of the soul of their departed friend. The clergy calling and reciting the prayers for the dead were Monsignor Drury, the Rev. Austin V. Carey and Father Flaherty. Friday afternoon, the uniformed firemen under Chief Joseph L. Murphy called to pay their respects to a former member of the department. In the evening St. Mary's Holy Name Society, led by President Arthur Bouchard, assembled and with Father Farrelly recited the Rosary, followed by the Knights of Columbus, with Grand Knight Charles Trice, assisted the Rev. James A. Dunnigan, chaplain with the Rosary. The casket was surrounded with beautiful flowers, and on the spiritual bouquet receiver were dozens of Mass cards, memorials of the esteem in which the deceased was held. Following the Mass, one of the longest procession of mourners made their way to St. Mary's Cemetery where the final absolution and blessing were given by Monsignor Drury, Fathers Flaherty and Farrelly assisting. Bearers were James Howard, Charles Coughlin, Robert Conlin, John Graney, Edward Coughlin and John Hurley, all nephews of the deceased.

Youngster's Gay Spree Ended by Local Police

A 12-year-old boy had a gay time Saturday evening before he was caught by police on Abeel street in this city.

Sheriff's office men were alerted at 6:25 p. m. Saturday that the boy had taken off from the Lyonsville home in which he was boarding with $40 that belonged to his hosts.

The trail led to Stone Ridge, where he reportedly entered a home and stole a bicycle, a cigarette lighter, and an additional amount of money, the sheriff's office reported.

Sheriff's men learned the boy stopped in several places, spending "a lot of money" to purchase souvenirs and other items. As the trail led closer to Kingston, police were notified, and about midnight he was picked up on Abeel street by Patrolman Raymond Wells and James Harbeck.

Hotel Damaged At Greenfield Park

Fire which is believed to have started in the bakery portion of the kitchen at Abe Steinhorn's Grand Mountain Hotel at Greenfield Park Sunday afternoon about 3:55 o'clock did damage which will run into a considerable sum and has made necessary the closing of the hotel because of lack of kitchen facilities.

Members of the Ellenville, Mountaindale, Woodbourne and Woodridge fire departments fought the fire and confined it to the kitchen and bakery annex which adjoins the dining room. There was some damage to the dining room and the walls of the hotel proper were damaged to some extent, it was reported by firemen.

At the time the fire started there was no one in the bake shop.

Guests at the house were leaving today, since there were no facilities to provide meals at the hotel which was booked full prior to the fire.

The Grand Mountain Hotel is a four story frame building about 60 by 100 feet with an annex which housed the kitchen and bakery.

Firemen said there was no difficulty in vacating the house when the fire was discovered.

A report late today from firemen who were at the scene placed the loss as high as $150,000.

Exam Is Scheduled For Police Sergeant

The Municipal Civil Service Commission announced today that it had received word from the state commission that a promotional examination for police sergeant will be held Nov. 17.

Another promotional examination is to be held for the positions of police captain and lieutenant, but the date for this has not been fixed.

The examinations are necessary because of the recent retirement of Capt. William T. Roedell. A lieutenant will be moved up and one of the sergeants will become a lieutenant.

One patrolman vacancy exists now on the department and there will be another when a patrolman is moved up to the rank of sergeant.

Those on the eligible list for patrolmen and the percentage achieved in the civil service examination are: Philip McGowan, 21, Presidents Place, 90; Douglas V. Eckert, 78 Hunter street, 88, and Kenneth W. Gaffney, 47 Manor Place, 84.6.

The police board is scheduled to meet Thursday and a patrolman appointment may be made at that time.

MacFaddenJumps, Says It's Great; Next Year Niagara

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Physical culturist Bernarr MacFadden, who celebrated his 83rd birthday with a 2,000-foot parachute jump into the Hudson river, yesterday, says he is "good for things like this for 10 more years."

"I recommend this for everybody," he adds. "It's a damn good thing to do. I could do it every day in the week."

When MacFadden was fished out of the Hudson after his jump yesterday, he said:

"I feel like a million. I feel 25. Next year, I'm going to jump over Niagara Falls."

MacFadden's parachute leap yesterday was for the dual purpose, he said, of demonstrating that "old age is just a habit" and that U. S. paratroopers need have no fear of landing in water.

But the publisher of health pamphlets and romance magazines almost failed to accomplish the second purpose. A wind caught MacFadden and almost dashed him into the rocky palisades.

Narrowly Misses Trees

Then he narrowly missed a clump of trees on the cliff, and finally landed in the river only 20 feet off the New Jersey shore, near Alpine and opposite Yonkers, N. Y., just north of New York city.

From both banks of the Hudson, thousands of onlookers watched as the octogenarian jumped, his ski suit looking like red flannel underwear.

Rescuers dragged him into a fishing boat. Then MacFadden transferred to a yacht and personally took the wheel. But first he discarfded his ski suit, white life belt and helmet, and changed into a gray suit and shirt, plaid bow tie and straw hat.

Is Shooed Away

MacFadden had intended to jump near the George Washington Bridge, but New York city authorities sent up a police helicopter to shoo him away. So he took his stunt upstream.

Similar bouts with Canadian and American authorities had caused him previously to drop, at least temporarily, plans to parachute next week into the churning waters below Niagara Falls, he said.

The publisher made his first parachute jump at Dansville, N. Y., two years ago to celebrate his 81st birthday. His actual birth date is Aug. 16.

He took off in a plane yesterday from Teterboro, N. J., with Major Lloyd Hill, of Canada, as his technical adviser. Hill's brother, "Red" was killed a few weeks ago trying to shoot Niagara Falls in a "barrel" made of inner tubes.

Evening Verse—
(For Your Scrapbook)
By DANIEL J. O'CONNOR

HATS and SHOES

I'd rather be a funny hat
Than be the smartest shoe
For shoes see only pavements flat
With passing feet in view.

A hat may startle passers-by
And oftentimes it will
Yet hats may view the starlit sky
Beyond the highest hill.
A hat may feel the sudden rain
While still it's fresh and sweet
But shoes must bear the added strain
Along the muddy street.

I simply mean that life is bright
If one keeps looking up
For looking down suggests the night
And trouble's brimming cup.
The world can be a joyful place
If joy is what we choose
For we must daily pause to face

Plans Are Completed

Plans are now completed for the fourth annual block party of the A. H. Wicks Engine and Truck Company, Inc., to be given August 30, 31 and Sept 1, on Wiltwyck avenue in front of the engine house between Downs and O'Neil streets, it was announced today by Harold Hyatt, chairman of the company's activities committee. All important details for the party have been arranged, Hyatt said, and a large attendance is expected for the annual firemen's event.

Funeral Is Held

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—One thousand persons attended a funeral mass today for Maj. William V. Holohan, who was slain almost seven years ago behind enemy lines in Italy and his body dumped in a lake. A recent Defense Department announcement said Maj. Holohan was killed while on a mision for the Office of Strategic Services in 1944, and named two Americans in his group in connection with the slaying. The body was recovered from the lake and returned to New York last week.

Youngster's Gay Spree Ended by Local Police

A 12-year-old boy had a gay time Saturday evening before he was caught by police on Abeel street in this city.

Sheriff's office men were alerted at 6:25 p. m. Saturday that the boy had taken off from the Lyonsville home in which he was boarding with $40 that belonged to his hosts.

The trail led to Stone Ridge, where he reportedly entered a home and stole a bicycle, a cigarette lighter, and an additional amount of money, the sheriff's office reported.

Sheriff's men learned the boy stopped in several places, spending "a lot of money" to purchase souvenirs and other items. As the trail led closer to Kingston, police were notified, and about midnight he was picked up on Abeel street by Patrolman Raymond Wells and James Harbeck.

Hotel Damaged At Greenfield Park

Fire which is believed to have started in the bakery portion of the kitchen at Abe Steinhorn's Grand Mountain Hotel at Greenfield Park Sunday afternoon about 3:55 o'clock did damage which will run into a considerable sum and has made necessary the closing of the hotel because of lack of kitchen facilities.

Members of the Ellenville, Mountaindale, Woodbourne and Woodridge fire departments fought the fire and confined it to the kitchen and bakery annex which adjoins the dining room. There was some damage to the dining room and the walls of the hotel proper were damaged to some extent, it was reported by firemen.

At the time the fire started there was no one in the bake shop.

Guests at the house were leaving today, since there were no facilities to provide meals at the hotel which was booked full prior to the fire.

The Grand Mountain Hotel is a four story frame building about 60 by 100 feet with an annex which housed the kitchen and bakery.

Firemen said there was no difficulty in vacating the house when the fire was discovered.

A report late today from firemen who were at the scene placed the loss as high as $150,000.

Exam Is Scheduled For Police Sergeant

The Municipal Civil Service Commission announced today that it had received word from the state commission that a promotional examination for police sergeant will be held Nov. 17.

Another promotional examination is to be held for the positions of police captain and lieutenant, but the date for this has not been fixed.

The examinations are necessary because of the recent retirement of Capt. William T. Roedell. A lieutenant will be moved up and one of the sergeants will become a lieutenant.

One patrolman vacancy exists now on the department and there will be another when a patrolman is moved up to the rank of sergeant.

Those on the eligible list for patrolmen and the percentage achieved in the civil service examination are: Philip McGowan, 21, Presidents Place, 90; Douglas V. Eckert, 78 Hunter street, 88, and Kenneth W. Gaffney, 47 Manor Place, 84.6.

The police board is scheduled to meet Thursday and a patrolman appointment may be made at that time.

MacFaddenJumps, Says It's Great; Next Year Niagara

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Physical culturist Bernarr MacFadden, who celebrated his 83rd birthday with a 2,000-foot parachute jump into the Hudson river, yesterday, says he is "good for things like this for 10 more years."

"I recommend this for everybody," he adds. "It's a damn good thing to do. I could do it every day in the week."

When MacFadden was fished out of the Hudson after his jump yesterday, he said:

"I feel like a million. I feel 25. Next year, I'm going to jump over Niagara Falls."

MacFadden's parachute leap yesterday was for the dual purpose, he said, of demonstrating that "old age is just a habit" and that U. S. paratroopers need have no fear of landing in water.

But the publisher of health pamphlets and romance magazines almost failed to accomplish the second purpose. A wind caught MacFadden and almost dashed him into the rocky palisades.

Narrowly Misses Trees

Then he narrowly missed a clump of trees on the cliff, and finally landed in the river only 20 feet off the New Jersey shore, near Alpine and opposite Yonkers, N. Y., just north of New York city.

From both banks of the Hudson, thousands of onlookers watched as the octogenarian jumped, his ski suit looking like red flannel underwear.

Rescuers dragged him into a fishing boat. Then MacFadden transferred to a yacht and personally took the wheel. But first he discarfded his ski suit, white life belt and helmet, and changed into a gray suit and shirt, plaid bow tie and straw hat.

Is Shooed Away

MacFadden had intended to jump near the George Washington Bridge, but New York city authorities sent up a police helicopter to shoo him away. So he took his stunt upstream.

Similar bouts with Canadian and American authorities had caused him previously to drop, at least temporarily, plans to parachute next week into the churning waters below Niagara Falls, he said.

The publisher made his first parachute jump at Dansville, N. Y., two years ago to celebrate his 81st birthday. His actual birth date is Aug. 16.

He took off in a plane yesterday from Teterboro, N. J., with Major Lloyd Hill, of Canada, as his technical adviser. Hill's brother, "Red" was killed a few weeks ago trying to shoot Niagara Falls in a "barrel" made of inner tubes.

Divorce Is Granted

Martha G. Rockwell of Kingston, formerly of the town of Shandaken, has been granted a final decree of divorce from her husband, Frank Rockwell, Jr. The decree became final on August 24. The action was tried before Justice Isadore Bookstein at special term of Supreme court here on May 10, last. Abram F. Molyneaux appeared for the plaintiff.

Grants Are Made For Heart Research

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Grants-in-aid totaling $311,912 have been made by the American Heart Association for 60 research projects in heart and blood diseases.

Dr. Louis N. Katz, president of the association, said yesterday most of the grants were for studies to find the unknown causes of hardening and narrowing of the arteries, high blood pressure and rheumatic fever.

Other studies, he said, included the use of surgery and further development of the mechanical heart-lung and the artificial kidney.

In addition to the grants, the association announced it will provide financial aid for Dr. Victor Lorber, of Cleveland, "throughout his productive life" so that he might be free to devote himself to research. The association granted Lorber $21,100 for salary and expenses for the next year.

The 60 new grants bring to $478,662 the total allotted by the association for research during the past year.

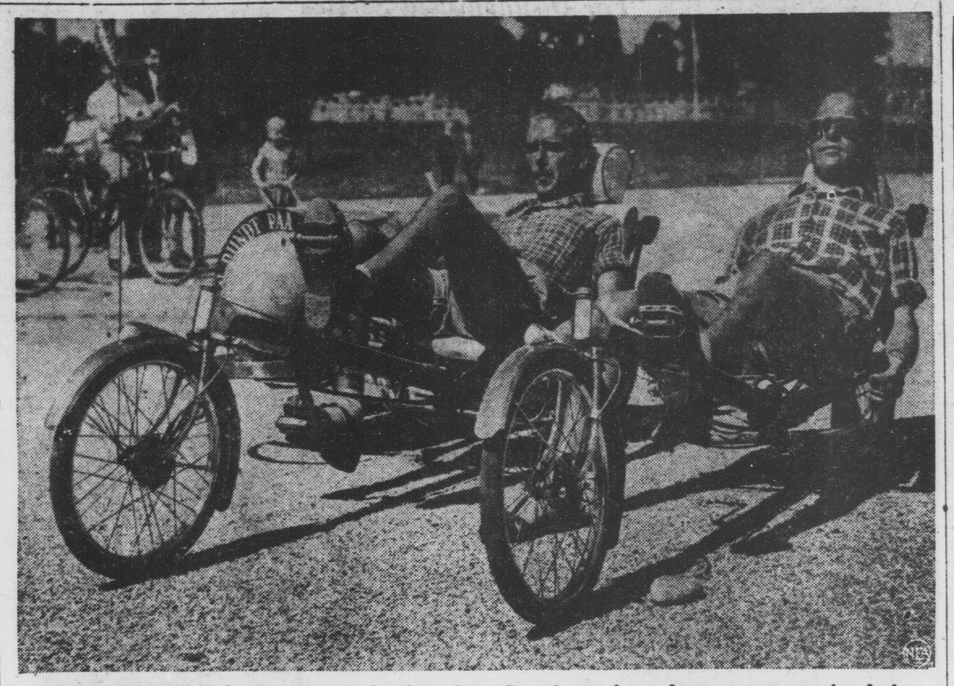

Workman Is Killed

Spring Valley, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—A power company workman was electrocuted yesterday and another man critically injured when they accidently touched a live cable in a substation here. Dead was Edgar Kramer, 34, of Closter Dock Rd., Closter, N. J. His fellow-worker, Albert Setutzman, 34, of Gurnee Ave., Haverstraw, N. Y., was badly burned on most of his body and taken to Spring Valley Hospital in critical condition. Clarkstown police said the men were working in a substation of the Rockland Light and Power Co. when they came in contact with the live wire.

Plenty of Turkeys

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—There will be plenty of turkeys for Thanksgiving. The state agriculture department said yesterday that the 970,000 turkeys being raised in New York this summer represented a nine per cent increase over last year's total. The 1951 crop in the nation totals 52,774,000, an increase of 16 per cent over last year.

The sun gives off radiant energy due to conversion of matter, at a rate of approximately 4,000,000 tons a second.

WEIRD WHEELING—Two Danish brothers from Copenhagen have drawn many amazing looks from onlookers during the first month of their round-the-world journey by bikes. Their strange vehicles, shown above as they passed through a Munich, Germany, street, enable them to peddle while lying down. The brothers, Svend Aage and Knud Erik Nielsen, expect to finance the three-year tour through several continents by selling picture postcards of their unusual vehicles.

Police Block Entrance To Rensselaer Track

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—State police prevented a raceway from holding stock car races yesterday despite New York's "Blue Laws," and apparently thwarted the track operator's plan to test the law.

"I wanted to run a few races and get arrested so as to try the law out in the courts," said Bernard P. Breslow, president of the Ups 'N Downs Raceway in nearby Schodack.

But, no arrests were made.

State police stopped the program before it could get underway. They blocked all entrances to the track, in Rensselaer county. The troopers, who arrived while the cars were warming up, were heckled by the crowd.

Earlier in the summer, police closed several upstate tracks when their owners attempted to hold Sunday races with a view to testing the ban in the courts.

Electrification Week

Ernest R. Acker, President of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, announced today that Central Hudson would join with utilities from all over the nation in observing Rural Electrification Week. The industry is celebrating the near-completion of the electrification of America's farms. By the end of this year 95 per cent of the nation's farms will have electricity available. In the Central Hudson franchise it is available to every farm, the company says. In commenting on the rural week Acker said: "It is gratifying to us at Central Hudson and a great tribute to the farmers in our area to be able to testify to such a splendid record.

Civil Service Exam

An examination for appointment to the position of industrial cost accountant has been announced by the executive secretary, Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, 67 Broad street, New York, to fill vacancies in the Army Audit Agency, Navy Cost Inspection Service and the Auditor's General Office of the Department of the U. S. Air Force. Further information and application forms may be obtained from first and second class postoffices.

Republican Group Favors MacArthur

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 26 (AP)—General Douglas MacArthur should head the U. S. delegation to the Japanese Peace Treaty Conference, the Board of Governors of the Young Republican Clubs contends.

At its quarterly meeting here Saturday, the board unanimously adopted a resolution calling for McArthur's appointment as head of the delegation.

The resolution said McArthur was "primarily responsible for the spiritual and material recovery of the Japanese people."

MacArthur, an aide said last Wednesday, "definitely has not been invited" to the conference, opening Sept. 4 in San Francisco.

The board also endorsed the candidacy of Rep. Henry Latham of Queens for the presidency of the New York City Council.

C. Benn Forsyth of Rochester was appointed chairman of the Young GOP's Club and district organization.

LESSONS FOR KAESONG

A little more than two years ago the West was flush with its air-lift triumph over the Berlin blockade imposed by the Russians. The Kremlin had backed down and called off its effort to stifle freedom in the city.

Western statesmen were understandably pleased that the air-lift plus the economic boycott of Soviet Germany had produced a "situation of strength" which the Russians felt compelled to accept. It was the first spectacular victory of free men over communism in the Cold War.

But a look at Berlin today suggests that the triumph was something less than complete. Marguerite Higgins, competent correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, revisited the city recently and observed many disquieting signs.

A "baby blockade" against the export of West Berlin's goods has been in progress for some time. We are meeting it with a "little air-lift" of more than a dozen flights a day.

Miss Higgins found the Berlin press crowded with stories of Soviet attempts to cripple the city's business. Kidnapings of West Berlin's officials and citizens by East zone police go on as before.

It is easy to recall, too, that many interruptions of the city's economic life have occurred in the months since the big blockade was lifted. What Miss Higgins saw were merely the August, 1951, variations on a constant Soviet theme.

And as she pointed out, Berlin faces continual harassments of this sort in the future. She added: "The West cannot yet claim victory in Berlin. It is clear that the Soviet Union seeks now to do by degrees what it was unable to do by one dramatic blow."

Testimony is general that the 1948-49 Allied boycott of Russian Germany really was damaging. And the air-lift's success was seriously embarrassing to Moscow's prestige. Yet it seems clear now that we did not wisely press our advantage.

We were so overjoyed at the fact the Russians were willing to back down at all, that we failed to make them backtrack enough. Perhaps we were too busy congratulating ourselves at the success of our tactics. We forgot that the Russians are tireless bargainers, who try to snatch partial victory even from acknowledged defeat.

Mayor Ernst Reuter of Berlin believes we should have maintained the air-lift and boycott a few months longer to heighten our bargaining power with the Kremlin. Others feel that our great error was in not getting advance guarantees of free road and rail access to Berlin before lifting our counter-blockade measures.

At any rate, the results are clear beyond dispute. We did not gain the whole victory. Berlin today is the constant victim of small sieges. The city's predicament is a cue to our persistent failure to understand the Soviet Communist mind.

Probably it's too late to repair the damage in Berlin. But what has happened there since 1949 should be a sharp lesson to the Americans sitting across from the Communists at Kaesong.

Once again, ours is the basic advantage. We have won whatever victory can be claimed. That the Reds are negotiating at all is proof of that. But they will salvage from their defeat everything they can squeeze out of us. We simply must not allow ourselves to be squeezed. "Situations of strength" will avail us little if we do not exert the strength when we have it.

A new process which keeps wool from shrinking has been discovered. For a long time the public believed that the only unshrinkable wool was that which the politicians tried to pull over the voters' eyes.

VANITY AND MEMORY

"Vanity plays lurid tricks with our memory," remarked Joseph Conrad. So it is that a lethargic little fish of three-quarters of a pound, which happened to cut the line in two by darting past the jagged end of a discarded tin can in the surprise of feeling the hook in its mouth, becomes in the third telling a six-pounder of fighting spirit which all but jerked the rod from the angler's straining hands and pulled the line apart with a mighty lunge. Memory, after being touched by vanity, seems so much superior to reality!

CORLISS LAMONT ON RUSSIA

In a pamphlet which is being widely circulated, Dr. Corliss Lamont of Columbia University, son of the late senior partner of J. P. Morgan & Co. makes this point:

". . . morally Communist parties are on an obviously higher plane than Fascist parties in that they have such aims as (1) complete racial democracy and non-discrimination; (2) full equality between the sexes; (3) educational and cultural opportunity for everyone; (4) a planned socialist economy of abundance on behalf of all the people; (5) the attainment of political democracy when the transitional need for dictatorship has passed; (6) the teaching of an inclusive and integrated philosophy of life; and (7)) the achievement of international peace. In spite of the colossal blunder and act of international immorality on the part of the Communist-controlled North Koreans in committing aggression against South Korea, I am convinced that Communist parties are on the whole desirious of seeing world peace established.

"In the above seven points I have not tried to cover all the basic differences between the Communists and Fascists; but my summary indicates the revelance of the remark once made by Lord Strachey, now minister of war in the British labor government, namely, that communism and fascism are like two express trains going in opposite directions. The notion that communism and fascism are fundamentally the same is a dangerous untruth . . ."

Dr. Lamont has for many years been one of the principal apologists in the United States for Soviet Russia and its creed. He has long been associated with the National Council of American-Soviet friendship. That per se does not make of him a Communist or even a Communist symphathizer. He calls himself a socialist and once wrote a book entitled, "You Might Like Socialism."

The quotation above contains several falsehoods by implication. For instance, any statement that Soviet Russia practices racial democracy is false on the record. As regards the Jews, the Volga Germans and several Asiatic races, Soviet Russia has practiced genocide with a completeness unparalleled even by Hitler. On this subject, the reader might find it advantageous to read Professor Solomon M. Schwartz's book, "The Jews in the Soviet Union," published by the Syracuse University press. The elimination of the middle class and the intellectuals from such countries as Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Lithuania, Latvia and even the Ukraine and their exile to Siberia, the Karakum desert and Turkestan is one of the most horrible stories in history.

When Dr. Lamont suggests that Communist parties practice non-discrimination, he does not, of course, include the persecutions of religions, which, to most human beings, is as offensive as genocide against races. All religions, Roman Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, with the single exception of the Orthodox Church have been obliterated. Some worship is permitted, but religious groups must have schools to teach their philisophy, to train their clergy and to prepare their children. There are forbidden, as is the use of such languages as Hebrew and Latin.

The Orthodox Church is a political arm of the Soviet government, directly controlled by the state and employed to assist in the extirpation of other religious groups. It is under lay, political control.

It is interesting to note that wherever a Communist party takes over a country, it fights religion and imprisons and sometimes kills professional clergymen. This pattern has recently been adopted in Soviet China.

Dr. Lamont says that in Communist countries there is "educational and cultural opportunity for everyone." As one long associated with a leading American university, Dr. Lamont ought to be ashamed to call a system which provides for a state determination of what men may know and believe, education, Surely, there can be no "free inquiry," which is the essence of education, when the history, biology, art, and every avenue of thought, oligarchy can say what is right about philosophy research and expression.

What about the Lysenko controversy in which the government decided what is true about genetics? What about Zhdanov deciding what music should be written by Shostakovich, Prokofieff and Khatchaturian? What about the elimination of all so-called "cosmopolitans" from the writing profession?

Surely, Dr. Lamont, who has been an advocate in the cause of Russia, has not been driven from Columbia University, nor has he been forbidden to write in favor of our enemy and in opposition to the stated policy of his government. Does he know and can he name one anti-Marxist who teaches in any university in Soviet Russia?

Each one of Dr. Lamont's points, except full equality of the sexes, can be demonstrated to be special pleading. The question arises: To what end is this done?

CURING ALCOHOLISM

Notwithstanding all that we are learning about alcoholism there are many who can't understand the alcoholic, how he (or she) can neglect family, ignore the advice of friends and allow himself to sink more or less rapidly downward. These folk do not understand the problem of alcoholism; they do not realize that it is really a disease.

In the New York State Journal of Medicine, Dr. Harry M. Trebout (Greenwich, Conn.) states that alcoholism is characterized by the compulsive quality of the drinking, which is not willed by the patient nor stopped by will power. The diagnosis of compulsive drinking is most safely based on a history of increased drinking over the years. The patient is always the last to make the diagnosis or admit to himself that he is an alcoholic. The alcoholic's pride will not permit him to recognize that he cannot manage his drinking successfully.

When the alcoholic admits his inability to stop drinking and knows that he has touched bottom and needs help, "he is jarred from his complacency and brought face to face with the grim prospect ahead if his drinking continues." Hitting some kind of emotional bottom, being willing to admit he is licked, seems to be necessary before he can climb backward to respect for himself. Dr. Trebout points out that this surrender, willingness to accept help, is a difficult admission to the alcoholic but it is his best opportunity for a cure.

"The very concession or admission that he is powerless over alcohol is evidence that his ego, his pride in stating that he can stop drinking if he wants to do so, is broken down and has given up the hopeless fight against alcohol."

As we watch the work of Alcoholics Anonymous we can see how closely they have been following this method of cure. The alcoholic, by "surrendering" his pride, knowing that some higher power is needed, looks to that higher power by praying daily to be kept for just twenty-four hours from alcohol.

"That step of giving up the right is a major move psychologically. How to induce people to make this 'surrender' is not certain but that it must be made, seems certain."

At the present time the most successful method of inducing people to make the surrender is the joining of Alcoholics Anonymous, the members of which have all known what it is to touch bottom.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Ed. Note—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by several distinguished guest columnists, today's being Mr. Harry J. Anslinger, the Treasury Department's commissioner of narcotics and the U. S. representative on the United Nations Narcotic Commission. In international circles Mr. Anslinger is regarded as the greatest living authority on the world narcotics traffic. On June 30, 1951, in the U. S. House of Representatives, Congressman Gordon Canfield said: "The nations of the world regard him as the world's No. 1 authority on the subject.")

Washington—The narcotic peddler does not kidnap your children; he destroys them.

In extreme distress, parents brought their 16-year-old boy to my office. The lad quivered like the leaves of the aspen. He was suffering the dreaded withdrawal syndrome of drug addiction. He was one of those who use bravado to gain admission to the delinquent gang.

"Tell me where you get heroin," I said. "I will send you to the hospital for a cure."

We used an undercover agent to buy from the "pusher," who led us to the wholesale peddler. Then by progressive steps we graduated to one of the big traffickers who controlled a nation-wide syndicate. We trapped him like a rat. It took men, endless patience, long hours of vigilant surveillance, and infinite detailed corroboration. Now, where did he get his supply? From a country which signed the Geneva convention of 1931 to limit the manufacture of narcotic drugs to medical needs, and then estimated its heroin consumption at ten times its actual medical needs. Even with elaborate reporting and checking by international bodies, the padded estimates escaped the attention of the United Nations control machinery.

We first picked up the international leakage when the Los Angeles county sheriff turned over to us a peddler with ten ounces of heroin. He got it from a ship's steward traveling between New York and Trieste. In Trieste, the allied military authorities had inadvertently repealed narcotic laws. Diversion in Italy provided a ready source, with the connivance of the Mafia. Wheels within wheels. The narcotic traffic is intricately interlaced and skillfully interwoven.

We have 195 agents; less than 2 per cent of the federal enforcement personnel. These men account for 10 per cent of the federal prison population, and and convictions average 95 per cent. Our force is about as large as that of the police department in a place the size of Tampa, Florida.

The whole world regards the U. S. Treasury Department's Bureau of Narcotics as a model. The work is dangerous, nerve racking, round-the-clock, yet there is something which makes crusaders of all who engage in it. They respond beyond the call of duty.

Our enemy is artfully cunning. The seller is satisfied, and the user won't tell. There are no complaints as in crimes like robberies and kidnapping. Not one witness before the Senate Crime Committee would reveal his source of supply, through fear of consequences. We work completely undercover, and must come up with the corpus delicti (evidence) at the conclusion of the investigation. We are severely handicapped by court decisions relating to search and seizure, and must rely on state prosecution in many cases.

We need a law which will put the peddler away longer than 16 months. The House of Representatives passed such a bill. It is pending in the Senate. These cruel exploiters deserve greater punishment. If we had 1,000 agents—without a mandatory sentence law—we would still be on a treadmill; a merry-go-round (no reference to this column). Recently a notorious trafficker with five narcotic-law convictions received a suspended sentence.

Harold Normandale is an addict with over 100 arrests, including one for rape, murder, and many for narcotics. He peddled narcotics to take care of his own addiction. This type creates addicts. There are thousands like him. They have no sense of moral responsibility. They would, without hesitation, shoot heroin into the radiant veins of your 15-year-old daughter, and send her into prostitution to get money for the heroin they pump into her innocent body, yet such peddlers get off with suspended sentences.

The addict must be quarantined in city hospitals. Baltimore has the distinction of being the first city to set aside 10 beds for the disintoxication and rehabilitation of drug addicts.

Limitation on manufacture of narcotic drugs and control of international distribution have been accomplished through eight treaties. The United Nations is now working on a plan to limit opium production to world medical needs. This is the goal I have been working for at every international conference I have attended since 1931. Such an agreement would be the greatest achievement so far attained toward supressing the abuse of narcotic drugs throughout the world.

Present sources of our illicit narcotics are Italy, Iran, Turkey, India, Greece, Communist China and Mexico. Mexico is doing good work with airplanes and troops to suppress illicit opium cultivation. Other source countries please take note.

Reports of large-scale drug addiction throughout the world reflect a post-war phenomenon, and a jittery world.

About 1947 we had the traffic under control. Prison wardens reported an absence of addicted criminals. The population of our Lexington Narcotics Hospital had fallen to such an extent that a move was under way to abolish the hospital. I urged all to stand by and to prepare. We could feel it coming here and abroad. Warnings went unheeded. In the past two years it rolled in like an engulfing surf.

Finality in dealing with the international traffic must be reached. Its continued existence and evergreen activity is a sad reflection on the world's lack of joint determination to be done with these plague carriers whose god is auri sacra fames (the accursed thirst for gold).

U. S. Bomber Command Gets Permission to Bomb Spot Near Soviet Border

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug 27—At a time of great delicacy — when the "cease fire" talks are, it hoped, only temporarily suspended—the Unted States bomber command in Korea has finally been given permission to bomb Rashin which is just 17 miles from the Soviet border.

This is a turn of events so significant that it raises the question as to why General MacArthur was denied this authority originally and why, indeed, fear of Russia's entry into the war, in maximum force were used in Korea, has suddenly disappeared as a reason for bombing the northern bases.

Many people have been under the impression that the row over dismissing General MacArthur had to do only with bombing bases in Manchuria. Rashin is inside Korea.

Many people have assumed also that the military men were running our field operations and not Secretary Acheson of the Department of State. Here is Mr. Acheson's testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee on June 9 last:

"The question of bombing Racin (Rashin) came up, I believe, in the summer of 1950, or August 1950, and, as you have already been told in this hearing there was one raid which was carried on against it and another was going to be carried on but was called off on account of the weather."

"The State Department objected strongly to carrying on raids against a place which was 17 miles from he Soviet border and which raised very great dangers of involving Soviet forces. This thing came up in September, at which we presented our view, and the matter of bombing was not pressed by the joint chiefs of staff. It was discussed later some time in 1951; I believe, and it was unanimously concluded not to do it . . ."

"The view that this is an important supply point, I think, is not borne out by the facts . . . It was thought that it was more important to interrupt the rail lines in the southerly part which were not near the Soviet border and which would not run the risk of involving the Soviet forces. That has been done since and that rail line is interrupted."

Dispatches in the last 48 hours telling of the bombing of Rashin say that it is an important supply point and a submarine base and that the purpose in bombing it now is to destroy the Chinese build-up of supplies which has been going on throughout the "cease fire" talks.

On June 25 last—just a couple days after Malik made his proposal for a "cease fire"—General Emmett O'Donnell, Jr., commander of the U. S. Far East Air Force Bomber Command from July 8, 1950, to January 10, 1951, was reviewing the incident of Aug. 12, 1950 in his testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee as follows:

"So I scheduled a mission on Racin (Rashin) which was the northern-most town of Korea. . . . The marshalling yard at Racin was the focal point through which most of the supplies coming from Russia had to go down through the east coast to the support of the North Korean troops. . . . The squadrons got up there. . . . They bombed through the overcast and I heard later on that people back home were concerned about our hitting Siberia, but Siberia is 17 miles from Racin, and we don't make that kind of errors.

"And there was no question in my mind that we should have stayed on; as far as the accuracy, or capability of hitting the town—there was no question in the world about hitting it, and we didn't bomb the town either.

"Chairman Russell: I believe another attack on Racin was called off, and a secondary target chosen, was it not?

"General O'Donnell: It was planned but we were told that we would not be allowed to bomb Racin without specific authorization. . . . And I presume that authorization had to come from Washington. . . ."

General O'Donnell added that he had adequate forces to carry out the mission.

Senator Wiley then asked if the railroad in Manchuria and the bases had been knocked out whether the Chinese themselves "would have been so incapacitated by lack of war materiel they would have been easier to defeat and more American lives would have been saved," the air force general answered: "Yes, sir; I do."

Senator Cain drew the same admission from General O'Donnell confining the question solely to the bombing of Rashin. But the most important comment in the record is from General MacArthur himself in his testimony in which he said:

"I was very anxious to destroy that (Racin). Its usefulness to the enemy was self-evident. Great accumulations, depot accumulations, were made there. It was a great distributing center. They could run—the Soviets could run stuff from Vladivostock right down there. We asked to bomb that (Racin) and we were forbidden."

Why, since Racin was so important in the autumn of 1950, was General MacArthur as a military man told by the Secretary of State, a non-military man, how he should fight the war in Korea? The responsibility for the 80,000 casualties is involved in the answer especially as it turns out now after twelve months delay that the United States air force could have been ordered to bomb Racin without involving the risk of war against Russia any more then than in August 1951.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Aug. 26—If yesterday's pastoral suggested that his supreme pomposity, Daniel J. Tobin, the president of the Teamsters' Union, is a dope, dummy, fool or sucker, be it known by neither my intention nor the fact. Supremely infatuated with Daniel J. Tobin indeed the grand exalted fathead is. No better proof could you ask than the opening line of a story describing his latest re-election published in the International Teamster, his own official court circular, whose masthead says: "Daniel J. Tobin, editor."

This is what Daniel J. Tobin, editor, published about the re-election of Daniel J. Tobin, supreme exalted fathead: "In a tumultuous tribute to a great leader, the 15th convention of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters unanimously re-elected Daniel J. Tobin general president at its closing session in the San Francisco Civic Auditorium. Many times before this honor had come to President Tobin in the 40 years he has served the union but never before did he receive such a spontaneous ovation."

Now, possibly Mr. Tobin had a calculated desire that his subjects, who are now said to number almost one million, should regard him as a vain old clown. Amusement might fill their minds to the exclusion of rational thoughts. The contempt of decent truckmen, cannery workers and little girl billing clerks who comprise the heterogeneous membership of the Teamsters' Union, would be little enough for a man of the character here bespoken to pay for the advantage gained over them by deceiving them through the union's official magazine, published at their expense. If they regard him as a vulgar old fraud, they may not suspect him of the amazing guile that his exterior conceals.

Actually, Mr. Tobin received $10,000 extra for his income tax for several years. He may still get it. I am not always au courant on private arrangements between the kings of our unions and their exchequers. Neither are the commonality. They pay as they are ordered and ask no impudent questions and they pay their own income taxes.

Remembering that he recently reproved certain nameless occupants of other thrones in the King Row of Unionism for accepting salaries of $100,000 a year, the faceless man may carelessly conclude that King Day the Incredible is a modest man content to get along on the comparative poverty of his salary of $30,000 a year.

It is only when the invisible writ is read that the income and social security of this colossal old hypocrite are seen to be far greater than President Truman's. He is truly a king.

Without their knowledge, the Teamsters, including all those little girls, bought a truly luxurious winter palace on Miami Beach ten years ago and gave it to their king outright. They never were consulted or told the price. It was all done "by unanimous decision of the convention." In his majesty's own words, the convention instructed the executive board or royal cabinet "to do everything in its power to protect and preserve my health," because "I was subject to considerable sickness in winter resulting from bronchial trouble."

Further, in the king's own words, "The home was purchased fully furnished and deeded to me." A little later "I transferred it back to the international brotherhood for my own reasons."

His stated reason was that he

LESSONS FOR KAESONG

A little more than two years ago the West was flush with its air-lift triumph over the Berlin blockade imposed by the Russians. The Kremlin had backed down and called off its effort to stifle freedom in the city.

Western statesmen were understandably pleased that the air-lift plus the economic boycott of Soviet Germany had produced a "situation of strength" which the Russians felt compelled to accept. It was the first spectacular victory of free men over communism in the Cold War.

But a look at Berlin today suggests that the triumph was something less than complete. Marguerite Higgins, competent correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, revisited the city recently and observed many disquieting signs.

A "baby blockade" against the export of West Berlin's goods has been in progress for some time. We are meeting it with a "little air-lift" of more than a dozen flights a day.

Miss Higgins found the Berlin press crowded with stories of Soviet attempts to cripple the city's business. Kidnapings of West Berlin's officials and citizens by East zone police go on as before.

It is easy to recall, too, that many interruptions of the city's economic life have occurred in the months since the big blockade was lifted. What Miss Higgins saw were merely the August, 1951, variations on a constant Soviet theme.

And as she pointed out, Berlin faces continual harassments of this sort in the future. She added: "The West cannot yet claim victory in Berlin. It is clear that the Soviet Union seeks now to do by degrees what it was unable to do by one dramatic blow."

Testimony is general that the 1948-49 Allied boycott of Russian Germany really was damaging. And the air-lift's success was seriously embarrassing to Moscow's prestige. Yet it seems clear now that we did not wisely press our advantage.

We were so overjoyed at the fact the Russians were willing to back down at all, that we failed to make them backtrack enough. Perhaps we were too busy congratulating ourselves at the success of our tactics. We forgot that the Russians are tireless bargainers, who try to snatch partial victory even from acknowledged defeat.

Mayor Ernst Reuter of Berlin believes we should have maintained the air-lift and boycott a few months longer to heighten our bargaining power with the Kremlin. Others feel that our great error was in not getting advance guarantees of free road and rail access to Berlin before lifting our counter-blockade measures.

At any rate, the results are clear beyond dispute. We did not gain the whole victory. Berlin today is the constant victim of small sieges. The city's predicament is a cue to our persistent failure to understand the Soviet Communist mind.

Probably it's too late to repair the damage in Berlin. But what has happened there since 1949 should be a sharp lesson to the Americans sitting across from the Communists at Kaesong.

Once again, ours is the basic advantage. We have won whatever victory can be claimed. That the Reds are negotiating at all is proof of that. But they will salvage from their defeat everything they can squeeze out of us. We simply must not allow ourselves to be squeezed. "Situations of strength" will avail us little if we do not exert the strength when we have it.

A new process which keeps wool from shrinking has been discovered. For a long time the public believed that the only unshrinkable wool was that which the politicians tried to pull over the voters' eyes.

VANITY AND MEMORY

"Vanity plays lurid tricks with our memory," remarked Joseph Conrad. So it is that a lethargic little fish of three-quarters of a pound, which happened to cut the line in two by darting past the jagged end of a discarded tin can in the surprise of feeling the hook in its mouth, becomes in the third telling a six-pounder of fighting spirit which all but jerked the rod from the angler's straining hands and pulled the line apart with a mighty lunge. Memory, after being touched by vanity, seems so much superior to reality!

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

CORLISS LAMONT ON RUSSIA

In a pamphlet which is being widely circulated, Dr. Corliss Lamont of Columbia University, son of the late senior partner of J. P. Morgan & Co. makes this point:

" . . . morally Communist parties are on an obviously higher plane than Fascist parties in that they have such aims as (1) complete racial democracy and non-discrimination; (2) full equality between the sexes; (3) educational and cultural opportunity for everyone; (4) a planned socialist economy of abundance on behalf of all the people; (5) the attainment of political democracy when the transitional need for dictatorship has passed; (6) the teaching of an inclusive and integrated philosophy of life; and (7)) the achievement of international peace. In spite of the colossal blunder and act of international immorality on the part of the Communist-controlled North Koreans in committing aggression against South Korea, I am convinced that Communist parties are on the whole desirious of seeing world peace established.

"In the above seven points I have not tried to cover all the basic differences between the Communists and Fascists; but my summary indicates the revelance of the remark once made by John Strachey, now minister of war in the British labor government, namely, that communism and fascism are like two express trains going in opposite directions. The notion that communism and fascism are fundamentally the same is a dangerous untruth . . . "

Dr. Lamont has for many years been one of the principal apologists in the United States for Soviet Russia and its creed. He has long been associated with the National Council of American-Soviet friendship. That per se does not make of him a Communist or even a Communist symphathizer. He calls himself a socialist and once wrote a book entitled, "You Might Like Socialism."

The quotation above contains several falsehoods by implication. For instance, any statement that Soviet Russia practices racial democracy is false on the record. As regards the Jews, the Volga Germans and several Asiatic races, Soviet Russia has practiced genocide with a completeness unparalleled even by Hitler. On this subject, the reader might find it advantageous to read Professor Solomon M. Schwartz's book, "The Jews in the Soviet Union," published by the Syracuse University press. The elimination of the middle class and the intellectuals from such countries as Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Lithuania, Latvia and even the Ukraine and their exile to Siberia, the Karakum desert and Turkestan is one of the most horrible stories in history.

When Dr. Lamont suggests that Communist parties practice non-discrimination, he does not, of course, include the persecutions of religions, which, to most human beings, is as offensive as genocide against races. All religions, Roman Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, with the single exception of the Orthodox Church have been obliterated. Some worship is permitted, but religious groups must have schools to teech their philisophy, to train their clergy and to prepare their children. There are forbidden, as is the use of such languages as Hebrew and Latin.

The Orthodox Church is a political arm of the Soviet government, directly controlled by the state and employed to assist in the extirpation of other religious groups. It is under lay, political control.

It is interesting to note that wherever a Communist party takes over a country, it fights religion and imprisons and sometimes kills professional clergymen. This pattern has recently been adopted in Soviet China.

Dr. Lamont says that in Communist countries there is "educational and cultural opportunity for everyone." As one long associated with a leading American university, Dr. Lamont ought to be ashamed to call a system which provides for a state determination of what men may know and believe, education, Surely, there can be no "free inquiry," which is the essence of education, when the history, biology, art, and every avenue of thought, oligarchy can say what is right about philosophy research and expression.

What about the Lysenko controversy in which the government decided what is true about genetics? What about Zhdanov deciding what music should be written by Shostakovich, Prokofieff and Khatchaturian? What about the elimination of all so-called "cosmopolitans" from the writing profession?

Surely, Dr. Lamont, who has been an advocate in the cause of Russia, has not been driven from Columbia University, nor has he been forbidden to write in favor of our enemy and in opposition to the stated policy of his government. Does he know and can he name one anti-Marxist who teaches in any university in Soviet Russia?

Each one of Dr. Lamont's points, except full equality of the sexes, can be demonstrated to be special pleading. The question arises: To what end is this done?

CURING ALCOHOLISM

Notwithstanding all that we are learning about alcoholism there are many who can't understand the alcoholic, how he (or she) can neglect family, ignore the advice of friends and allow himself to sink more or less rapidly downward. These folk do not understand the problem of alcoholism; they do not realize that it is really a disease.

In the New York State Journal of Medicine, Dr. Harry M. Trebout (Greenwich, Conn.) states that alcoholism is characterized by the compulsive quality of the drinking, which is not willed by the patient nor stopped by will power. The diagnosis of compulsive drinking is most safely based on a history of increased drinking over the years. The patient is always the last to make the diagnosis or admit to himself that he is an alcoholic. The alcoholic's pride will not permit him to recognize that he cannot manage his drinking successfully.

When the alcoholic admits his inability to stop drinking and knows that he has touched bottom and needs help, "he is jarred from his complacency and brought face to face with the grim prospect ahead if his drinking continues." Hitting some kind of emotional bottom, being willing to admit he is licked, seems to be necessary before he can climb backward to respect for himself. Dr. Trebout points out that this surrender, willingness to accept help, is a difficult admission to the alcoholic but it is his best opportunity for a cure.

"The very concession or admission that he is powerless over alcohol is evidence that his ego, his pride in stating that he can stop drinking if he wants to do so, is broken down and has given up the hopeless fight against alcohol."

As we watch the work of Alcoholics Anonymous we can see how closely they have been following this method of cure. The alcoholic, by "surrendering" his pride, knowing that some higher power is needed, looks to that higher power by praying daily to be kept for just twenty-four hours from alcohol.

"That step of giving up the right is a major move psychologically. How to induce people to make this 'surrender' is not certain but that it must be made, seems certain."

At the present time the most successful method of inducing people to make the surrender is the joining of Alcoholics Anonymous, the members of which have all known what it is to touch bottom.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Ed. Note—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by several distinguished guest columnists, today's being Mr. Harry J. Anslinger, the Treasury Department's commissioner of narcotics and the U. S. representative on the United Nations Narcotic Commission. In international circles Mr. Anslinger is regarded as the greatest living authority on the world narcotics traffic. On June 30, 1951, in the U. S. House of Representatives, Congressman Gordon Canfield said: "The nations of the world regard him as the world's No. 1 authority on the subject.")

Washington—The narcotic peddler does not kidnap your children; he destroys them.

In extreme distress, parents brought their 16-year-old boy to my office. The lad quivered like the leaves of the aspen. He was suffering the dreaded withdrawal syndrome of drug addiction. He was one of those who use bravado to gain admission to the delinquent gang.

"Tell me where you get heroin," I said. "I will send you to the hospital for a cure."

We used an undercover agent to buy from the "pusher," who led us to the wholesale peddler. Then by progressive steps we graduated to one of the big traffickers who controlled a nation-wide syndicate. We trapped him like a rat. It took men, endless patience, long hours of vigilant surveillance, and infinite detailed corroboration. Now, where did he get his supply? From a country which signed the Geneva convention of 1931 to limit the manufacture of narcotic drugs to medical needs, and then estimated its heroin consumption at ten times its actual medical needs. Even with elaborate reporting and checking by international bodies, the padded estimates escaped the attention of the United Nations control machinery.

We first picked up the international leakage when the Los Angeles county sheriff turned over to us a peddler with ten ounces of heroin. He got it from a ship's steward traveling between New York and Trieste. In Trieste, the allied military authorities had inadvertently repealed narcotic laws. Diversion in Italy provided a ready source, with the connivance of the Mafia. Wheels within wheels. The narcotic traffic is intricately interlaced and skillfully interwoven.

We have 195 agents; less than 2 per cent of the federal enforcement personnel. These men account for 10 per cent of the federal prison population, and and convictions average 95 per cent. Our force is about as large as that of the police department in a place the size of Tampa, Florida.

The whole world regards the U. S. Treasury Department's Bureau of Narcotics as a model. The work is dangerous, nerve racking, round-the-clock, yet there is something which makes crusaders of all who engage in it. They respond beyond the call of duty.

Our enemy is artfully cunning. The seller is satisfied, and the user won't tell. There are no complaints as in crimes like robberies and kidnapping. Not one witness before the Senate Crime Committee would reveal his source of supply, through fear of consequences. We work completely undercover, and must come up with the corpus delicti (evidence) at the conclusion of the investigation. We are severely handicapped by court decisions relating to search and seizure, and must rely on state prosecution in many cases.

We need a law which will put the peddler away longer than 16 months. The House of Representatives passed such a bill. It is pending in the Senate. These cruel exploiters deserve greater punishment. If we had 1,000 agents—without a mandatory sentence law—we would still be on a treadmill; a merry-go-round (no reference to this column). Recently a notorious trafficker with five narcotic-law convictions received a suspended sentence.

Harold Normandale is an addict with over 100 arrests, including one for rape, murder, and many for narcotics. He peddled narcotics to take care of his own addiction. This type creates addicts. There are thousands like him. They have no sense of moral responsibility. They would, without hesitation, shoot heroin into the radiant veins of your 15-year-old daughter, and send her into prostitution to get money for the heroin they pump into her innocent body, yet such peddlers get off with suspended sentences.

The addict must be quarantined in city hospitals. Baltimore has the distinction of being the first city to set aside 10 beds for the disintoxication and rehabilitation of drug addicts.

Limitation on manufacture of narcotic drugs and control of international distribution have been accomplished through eight treaties. The United Nations is now working on a plan to limit opium production to world medical needs. This is the goal I have been working for at every international conference I have attended since 1931. Such an agreement would be the greatest achievement so far attained toward supressing the abuse of narcotic drugs throughout the world.

Present sources of our illicit narcotics are Italy, Iran, Turkey, India, Greece, Communist China and Mexico. Mexico is doing good work with airplanes and troops to suppress illicit opium cultivation. Other source countries please take note.

Reports of large-scale drug addiction throughout the world reflect a post-war phenomenon, and a jittery world.

About 1947 we had the traffic under control. Prison wardens reported an absence of addicted criminals. The population of our Lexington Narcotics Hospital had fallen to such an extent that a move was under way to abolish the hospital. I urged all to stand by and to prepare. We could feel it coming here and abroad. Warnings went unheeded. In the past two years it rolled in like an engulfing surf.

Finality in dealing with the international traffic must be reached. Its continued existence and evergreen activity is a sad reflection on the world's lack of joint determination to be done with these plague carriers whose god is auri sacra fames (the accursed thirst for gold).

U. S. Bomber Command Gets Permission to Bomb Spot Near Soviet Border

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug 27—At a time of great delicacy — when the "cease fire" talks are, it hoped, only temporarily suspended—the Unted States bomber command in Korea has finally been given permission to bomb Rashin which is just 17 miles from the Soviet border.

This is a turn of events so significant that it raises the question as to why General MacArthur was denied this authority originally and why, indeed, fear of Russia's entry into the war, in maximum force were used in Korea, has suddenly disappeared as a reason for bombing the northern bases.

Many people have been under the impression that the row over dismissing General MacArthur had to do only with bombing bases in Manchuria. Rashin is inside Korea.

Many people have assumed also that the military men were running our field operations and not Secretary Acheson of the Department of State. Here is Mr. Acheson's testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee on June 9 last:

"The question of bombing Racin (Rashin) came up, I believe, in the summer of 1950, or August 1950, and, as you have already been told in this hearing there was one raid which was carried on against it and another was going to be carried on but was called off on account of the weather."

"The State Department objected strongly to carrying on raids against a place which was 17 miles from he Soviet border and which raised very great dangers of involving Soviet forces. This thing came up in September, at which we presented our view, and the matter of bombing was not pressed by the joint chiefs of staff. It was discussed later some time in 1951; I believe, and it was unanimously concluded not to do it . . .

"The view that this is an important supply point, I think, is not borne out by the facts . . . It was thought that it was more important to interrupt the rail lines in the southerly part which were not near the Soviet border and which would not run the risk of involving the Soviet forces. That has been done since and that rail line is interrupted."

Dispatches in the last 48 hours telling of the bombing of Rashin say that it is an important supply point and a submarine base and that the purpose in bombing it now is to destroy the Chinese build-up of supplies which has been going on throughout the "cease fire" talks.

On June 25 last—just a couple days after Malik made his proposal for a "cease fire"—General Emmett O'Donnell, Jr., commander of the U. S. Far East Air Force Bomber Command from July 8, 1950, to January 10, 1951, was reviewing the incident of Aug. 12, 1950 in his testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee as follows:

"So I scheduled a mission on Racin (Rashin) which was the northern-most town of Korea. . . . The marshalling yard at Racin was the focal point through which most of the supplies coming from Russia had to go down through the east coast to the support of the North Korean troops. . . . The squadrons got up there. . . . They bombed through the overcast and I heard later on that people back home were concerned about our hitting Siberia, but Siberia is 17 miles from Racin, and we don't make that kind of errors.

"And there was no question in my mind that we should have stayed on; as far as the accuracy, or capability of hitting the town—there was no question in the world about hitting it, and we didn't bomb the town either.

"Chairman Russell: I believe another attack on Racin was called off, and a secondary target chosen, was it not?

"General O'Donnell: It was planned but we were told that we would not be allowed to bomb Racin without specific authorization. . . . And I presume that authorization had to come from Washington. . . ."

General O'Donnell added that he had adequate forces to carry out the mission.

Senator Wiley then asked if the railroad in Manchuria and the bases had been knocked out whether the Chinese themselves "would have been so incapacitated by lack of war materiel they would have been easier to defeat and more American lives would have been saved," the air force general answered: "Yes, sir; I do."

Senator Cain drew the same admission from General O'Donnell confining the question solely to the bombing of Rashin. But the most important comment in the record is from General MacArthur himself in his testimony in which he said:

"I was very anxious to destroy that (Racin). Its usefulness to the enemy was self-evident. Great accumulations, depot accumulations, were made there. It was a great distributing center. They could run—the Soviets could run stuff from Vladivostock right down there. We asked to bomb that (Racin) and we were forbidden."

Why, since Racin was so important in the autumn of 1950, was General MacArthur as a military man told by the Secretary of State, a non-military man, how he should fight the war in Korea? The responsibility for the 80,000 casualties is involved in the answer especially as it turns out now after twelve months delay that the United States air force could have been ordered to bomb Racin without involving the risk of war against Russia any more then than in August 1951.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Aug. 26—If yesterday's pastoral suggested that his supreme pomposity, Daniel J. Tobin, the president of the Teamsters' Union, is a dope, dummy, fool or sucker, be it known by neither my intention nor the fact. Supremely infatuated with Daniel J. Tobin indeed the grand exalted fathead is. No better proof could you ask than the opening line of a story describing his latest re-election published in the International Teamster, his own official court circular, whose masthead says: "Daniel J. Tobin, editor."

This is what Daniel J. Tobin, editor, published about the re-election of Daniel J. Tobin, supreme exalted fathead: "In a tumultuous tribute to a great leader, the 15th convention of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters unanimously re-elected Daniel J. Tobin general president at its closing session in the San Francisco Civic Auditorium. Many times before this honor had come to President Tobin in the 40 years he has served the union but never before did he receive such a spontaneous ovation."

Now, possibly Mr. Tobin had a calculated desire that his subjects, who are now said to number almost one million, should regard him as a vain old clown. Amusement might fill their minds to the exclusion of rational thoughts. The contempt of decent truckmen, cannery workers and little girl billing clerks who comprise the heterogeneous membership of the Teamsters' Union, would be little enough for a man of the character here bespoken to pay for the advantage gained over them by deceiving them through the union's official magazine, published at their expense. If they regard him as a vulgar old fraud, they may not suspect him of the amazing guile that his exterior conceals.

Actually, Mr. Tobin received $10,000 extra for his income tax for several years. He may still get it. I am not always au courant on private arrangements between the kings of our unions and their exchequers. Neither are the commonality. They pay as they are ordered and ask no impudent questions and they pay their own income taxes.

Remembering that he recently reproved certain nameless occupants of other thrones in the King Row of Unionism for accepting salaries of $100,000 a year, the faceless man may carelessly conclude that King Day the incredible is a modest man content to get along on the comparative poverty of his salary of $30,000 a year.

It is only when the invisible writ is read that the income and social security of this colossal old hypocrite are seen to be far greater than President Truman's. He is truly a king.

Without their knowledge, the Teamsters, including all those little girls, bought a truly luxurious winter palace on Miami Beach ten years ago and gave it to their king outright. They never were consulted or told the price. It was all done "by unanimous decision of the convention." In his majesty's own words, the convention instructed the executive board or royal cabinet "to do everything in its power to protect and preserve my health," because "I was subject to considerable sickness in winter resulting from bronchial trouble."

Further, in the king's own words, "The home was purchased fully furnished and deeded to me." A little later "I transferred it back to the international brotherhood for my own reasons."

His stated reason was that he

PSC Resumes Its TelephoneHearing

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—The Public Service Commission resumes today its hearing on the New York Telephone Company's proposed rate increases, totaling $57,000,000.

An American Labor party spokesman declared in a prepared statement that the company was planning "a scandalous raid on the pocketbooks of millions of phone users."

The company claims the higher rates are needed to meet increases in wages, taxes and the cost of materials and supplies.

Last January, the company asked permission to raise rates by a total of $44,000,000. Last month, it tacked on $13,000,000.

The $57,000,000 boost would add 75 cents a month to the bills for residence phones upstate except in rural areas, where the increase would be $1. In the metropolitan New York city area, the increase also would be $1 a month in individual, flat-rate service for residences.

Business phone rates would go from $1.50 to $3 a month.

Clifford T. McAvoy, American Labor party candidate for president of the New York City Council, said the PSC "should take the initiative to reduce the existing rates, which are far too high and unreasonable."

The PSC granted the company an 11 per cent rate boost last year. That totaled an estimated $48,500,000.

Testimony on the new requests has been taken intermittently since March 1. Most of the sessions have been in Albany. PSC Commissioner Spencer B. Eddy lives in Saratoga Springs.

Eight Youths Held On Narcotics Charges

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Eight youths were held on narcotics charges today after a police raid on a party in a house in Queens.

A group of young people, including two teen-age girls, engaged in a dope and liquor party in the house, police said.

Arraigned yesterday, the youths were held in $5,000 bail each for hearings today.

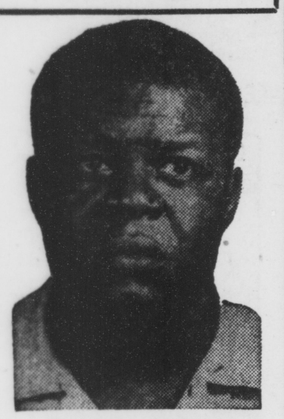

The arrests, made Saturday night, were among 33 narcotics arrests made in the city during the week-end.

The Queens raiders reported they seized three marihuana cigarettes, a syringe, two hypodermic needles, a spoon and a quantity of powder believed to be heroin.

The girls and several of the youths were released by police.

Police said the youths used the nacrotics to weaken the resistance of the girls. Parents had complained that their daughters returned home in a disturbed mental condition after attending parties at the raided house.

Jacoby on Canasta

Samba Varies From Canasta

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

A good many people have asked the same sort of question recently about Samba. That is the game, as most Canasta players know, in which you use three decks and in which you are allowed to meld sequences.

The questions boils down to this: When are you allowed to pick up the discard pile?

Let's suppose that the player at your right has just discarded the nine of spades. Let's discuss all the situations in which you are allowed to pick it up.

You are allowed to pick up that nine of spades if you have a pair of nines in your hand. You must then meld those cards as a meld of nines. If you already have a closed canasta of nines, you must start a new meld. In this game you are allowed to have two canastas of the same rank.

You are never allowed to pick up that nine with just one matching nine and a wild card. That kind of meld is allowed in Canasta but is impossible at Samba.

That covers all the cases in which you want to start a new meld. You are never allowed to start a new sequence with that nine of spades. Now lets' discuss the cases in which you want to start a new sequence with that nine of spades. Now let's discuss the cases in which you want to use that nine of spades with a meld that is already on the table.

Suppose the pack is not frozen, and that you have a meld of nines that was on the table before your turn began (a meld that was not a completed canasta). You may pick up the nine of spades and just the same procedure that you follow in Canasta. You can't do this if the pack is frozen. And in Samba you can't pick up the nine to add it to a completed canasta.

Now we came to sequences. Suppose you had a spade sequence on the table before your turn began. You are allowed to add the nine to it if that sequence ran down to the ten or if it ran up to the eight. In other words, the nine of spades must fit directly on to your sequence as it was before your turn began.

Here's the case that stumps many people. Suppose your partner has melded K-Q-J of spades and that the next player now discards the nine of spades. Can you meld the ten of spades from your hand and then add the nine of spades from the discard pile? No. That is not a legal play. The card must fit directly on to the sequence.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

PSC Resumes Its TelephoneHearing

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—The Public Service Commission resumes today its hearing on the New York Telephone Company's proposed rate increases, totaling $57,000,000.

An American Labor party spokesman declared in a prepared statement that the company was planning "a scandalous raid on the pocketbooks of millions of phone users."

The company claims the higher rates are needed to meet increases in wages, taxes and the cost of materials and supplies.

Last January, the company asked permission to raise rates by a total of $44,000,000. Last month, it tacked on $13,000,000.

The $57,000,000 boost would add 75 cents a month to the bills for residence phones upstate except in rural areas, where the increase would be $1. In the metropolitan New York city area, the increase also would be $1 a month in individual, flat-rate service for residences.

Business phone rates would go from $1.50 to $3 a month.

Clifford T. McAvoy, American Labor party candidate for president of the New York City Council, said the PSC "should take the initiative to reduce the existing rates, which are far too high and unreasonable."

The PSC granted the company an 11 per cent rate boost last year. That totaled an estimated $48,500,000.

Testimony on the new requests has been taken intermittently since March 1. Most of the sessions have been in Albany. PSC Commissioner Spencer B. Eddy lives in Saratoga Springs.

Archeological Discoveries

Cairo (AP) — Wendell Phillips, American archeologist of Concord, Calif., told reporters here he would soon open a display at the Carnegie Museum, Pittsburgh, of objects found in the ancient city of Timnah buried under Arabian sands. One will be a gold necklace dating back more than 2,300 years. A number of bronze and alabaster statues will also be shown. An expedition led by Phillips found the buried city in 1949.

Eight Youths Held On Narcotics Charges

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Eight youths were held on narcotics charges today after a police raid on a party in a house in Queens.

A group of young people, including two teen-age girls, engaged in a dope and liquor party in the house, police said.

Arraigned yesterday, the youths were held in $5,000 bail each for hearings today.

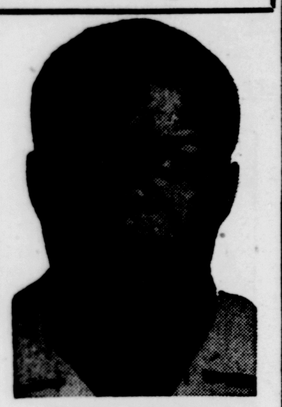

The arrests, made Saturday night, were among 33 narcotics arrests made in the city during the week-end.

The Queens raiders reported they seized three marihuana cigarettes, a syringe, two hypodermic needles, a spoon and a quantity of powder believed to be heroin.

The girls and several of the youths were released by police.

Police said the youths used the nacrotics to weaken the resistance of the girls. Parents had complained that their daughters returned home in a disturbed mental condition after attending parties at the raided house.

Jacoby on Canasta

Samba Varies From Canasta

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

A good many people have asked the same sort of question recently about Samba. That is the game, as most Canasta players know, in which you use three decks and in which you are allowed to meld sequences.

The questions boils down to this: When are you allowed to pick up the discard pile?

Let's suppose that the player at your right has just discarded the nine of spades. Let's discuss all the situations in which you are allowed to pick it up.

You are allowed to pick up that nine of spades if you have a pair of nines in your hand. You must then meld those cards as a meld of nines. If you already have a closed canasta of nines, you must start a new meld. In this game you are allowed to have two canastas of the same rank.

You are never allowed to pick up that nine with just one matching nine and a wild card. That kind of meld is allowed in Canasta but is impossible at Samba.

That covers all the cases in which you want to start a new meld. You are never allowed to start a new sequence with that nine of spades. Now lets' discuss the cases in which you want to start a new sequence with that nine of spades. Now let's discuss the cases in which you want to use that nine of spades with a meld that is already on the table.

Suppose the pack is not frozen, and that you have a meld of nines that was on the table before your turn began (a meld that was not a completed canasta). You may pick up the nine of spades and just the same procedure that you follow in Canasta. You can't do this if the pack is frozen. And in Samba you can't pick up the nine to add it to a completed canasta.

Now we came to sequences. Suppose you had a spade sequence on the table before your turn began. You are allowed to add the nine to it if that sequence ran down to the ten or if it ran up to the eight. In other words, the nine of spades must fit directly on to your sequence as it was before your turn began.

Here's the case that stumps many people. Suppose your partner has melded K-Q-J of spades and that the next player now discards the nine of spades. Can you meld the ten of spades from your hand and then add the nine of spades from the discard pile? No. That is not a legal play. The card must fit directly on to the sequence.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Hole Makers

Holes in cheese are caused by the activity of gas-producing bacteria. The gas catches in the rubbery cheese and makes holes in it just as the gas from yeast makes holes in bread.

FitzGerald Body Will Lie in State

New York, Aug. 27 (AP) — The body of Maurice A. FitzGerald, borough president of Queens, will lie in state today and tomorrow at a Queens funeral home.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday.

FitzGerald, 54, died of a heart ailment Saturday at Star Lake, N. Y., in the Adirondack Mountains. His body arrived here yesterday.

He and his wife had been visiting friends at Star Lake.

FitzGerald, Democrat, was elected borough president in 1949. He previously had served as a state assemblyman and as Queens sheriff.

His successor as borough president will be named by the four Queens members of the city council pending an election.

Hindu Gods 'Appeased'

Singapore (AP) — Three Hindu gods were appeased by a sacred bath in milk and coconut water at dawn in the Sivan temple here. "Siva" and "Ganesa" and "Subramanya" were disturbed by thieves who looted the temple during the Japanese occupation. The Kumbabhishekam (purification) ceremony lasted four days and included non-stop chanting. Old men and women filled brass pots with the holy water which flowed over the deities.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Even the Experts Can Make Mistakes

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"How would you play this hand?" asked my friend Bill Root, the young Miami expert.

"Disguised as somebody else," I replied.

The bidding is so fantastic that it's hard to believe that it really took place and that all the players were really experts. South's best response is two diamonds instead of one spade. Then it would take wild horses to stop North from bidding six diamonds — which is easily made.

I pointed this out to Root with great gusto while I studied the hand to see how it should be played at four spades. So when he insisted on an answer I had one ready. Can you find the best way to play the hand at the ridiculous contract of four spades? Decide for yourself before you read any farther.

Dummy wins the first trick with the ace of hearts. So far, I'm sure that everybody agrees with my line of play. Then declarer draws two rounds of trumps—with the ace and the queen. South thereupon switches to diamonds, and continues that suit until somebody ruffs.

As the cards are shown, West has the long trumps. If he leads a trump, dummy wins and continues diamonds. If he leads a heart, South ruffs and leads a trump to dummy's king. There are very weak defenses.

If West leads the ace of clubs, dummy discards a heart. Now South is ready to win a club continuation in his own hand. If West slyly underleads his ace of clubs, declarer still discards a heart from dummy to let the trick ride around to his king.

The contract is made even if East has the long trumps. Suppose that East can then lead clubs. South can finesse the ten if a low club is led. The defenders can take two club tricks (dummy will discard two hearts) but no more. If East ruffs and leads the queen of clubs, South covers with the king. Even then the defenders can take only two club tricks, since South's ten will then stop the suit.

If South begins by drawing three rounds of trumps he will soon find himself in hot water. West ruffs the third round of diamonds, after which the dummy is dead. Declarer is then lucky to win as many as eight tricks.

Employment Need Greater Than '50

New York, Aug. 27 (AP) — The State Employment Service reports a current demand for new workers in New York state 20 per cent greater than a year ago.

This situation prevails despite the fact that 300,000 more persons are employed in the state now than at the start of the Korean war.

The report, issued last night by State Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi, said average weekly earnings of production workers in New York manufacturing industries rose in June.

Preliminary figures showed the June average was $64.58 a week, compared with $64.22 in May and $58.57 in June, 1950. An average of 39.7 hours was worked each week in June, 1951.

Persons placed in jobs by the service in July totalled 67,200 in non-agricultural work and 45,200 in farm work. In July, 1950, industrial placements totalled 53,800, and farm jobs then were 15 per cent below last month.

The employment service attributed the increase labor demands to needs of upstate defense contractors and early hiring in the apparel industry for fall production. The increase in farm jobs was laid to harvesting activity in pea and bean crop areas.

Corsi reported that the June average weekly wage upstate was $66.95, compared with $66.84 in May and $59.28 in June, 1950.

He said that in New York city the June average was $62.25, compared with $61.69 in May and $57.94 in June, 1950.

The average June work week in New York city was 37.7 hours, while upstate it was 41.8 hours.

Metropolitan Star Tells of Attack

Edinburgh, Scotland, Aug. 27 (AP)—Genevieve Warner, a young blonde star of the Metropolitan Opera, told today of being garroted by a bandit and left senseless in an Edinburgh street.

She said a man attacked her in Edington Crescent, a street in the heart of Edinburgh, last night.

"He pulled a rope tightly around my neck," she said. "I struggled to pull it off. That was all I can remember."

Passersby found Miss Warner lying unconscious in the street and took her to the Royal Infirmary where her condition was reported comfortable.

Miss Warner's home is in Amsterdam, N. Y.

Cape Is Candle-Lit

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 27 (AP)—Cape Cod was candle-lit in many spots last night after a power line break blacked out the famed resort strip from as far north as Duxbury to the tip at Provincetown. Heavy Sunday traffic was snarled in a number of communities as traffic lights blinked out.

Even the Experts Can Make Mistakes

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"How would you play this hand?" asked my friend Bill Root, the young Miami expert.

"Disguised as somebody else," I replied.

The bidding is so fantastic that it's hard to believe that it really took place and that all the players were really experts. South's best response is two diamonds instead of one spade. Then it would take wild horses to stop North from bidding six diamonds — which is easily made.

I pointed this out to Root with great gusto while I studied the hand to see how it should be played at four spades. So when he insisted on an answer I had one ready. Can you find the best way to play the hand at the ridiculous contract of four spades? Decide for yourself before you read any farther.

Dummy wins the first trick with the ace of hearts. So far, I'm sure that everybody agrees with my line of play. Then declarer draws two rounds of trumps—with the ace and the queen. South thereupon switches to diamonds, and continues that suit until somebody ruffs.

As the cards are shown, West has the long trumps. If he leads a trump, dummy wins and continues diamonds. If he leads a heart, South ruffs and leads a trump to dummy's king. There are very weak defenses.

If West leads the ace of clubs, dummy discards a heart. Now South is ready to win a club continuation in his own hand. If West slyly underleads his ace of clubs, declarer still discards a heart from dummy to let the trick ride around to his king.

The contract is made even if East has the long trumps. Suppose that East can then lead clubs. South can finesse the ten if a low club is led. The defenders can take two club tricks (dummy will discard two hearts) but no more. If East ruffs and leads the queen of clubs, South covers with the king. Even then the defenders can take only two club tricks, since South's ten will then stop the suit.

If South begins by drawing three rounds of trumps he will soon find himself in hot water. West ruffs the third round of diamonds, after which the dummy is dead. Declarer is then lucky to win as many as eight tricks.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Employment Need Greater Than '50

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—The State Employment Service reports a current demand for new workers in New York state 20 per cent greater than a year ago.

This situation prevails despite the fact that 300,000 more persons are employed in the state now than at the start of the Korean war.

The report, issued last night by State Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi, said average weekly earnings of production workers in New York manufacturing industries rose in June.

Preliminary figures showed the June average was $64.58 a week, compared with $64.22 in May and $58.57 in June, 1950. An average of 39.7 hours was worked each week in June, 1951.

Persons placed in jobs by the service in July totalled 67,200 in non-agricultural work and 45,200 in farm work. In July, 1950, industrial placements totalled 53,800, and farm jobs then were 15 per cent below last month.

The employment service attributed the increase labor demands to needs of upstate defense contractors and early hiring in the apparel industry for fall production. The increase in farm jobs was laid to harvesting activity in pea and bean crop areas.

Corsi reported that the June average weekly wage upstate was $66.95, compared with $66.84 in May and $59.28 in June, 1950.

He said that in New York city the June average was $62.25, compared with $61.69 in May and $57.94 in June, 1950.

The average June work week in New York city was 37.7 hours, while upstate it was 41.8 hours.

Metropolitan Star Tells of Attack

She said a man attacked her in Edington Crescent, a street in the heart of Edinburgh, last night.

"He pulled a rope tightly around my neck," she said. "I struggled to pull it off. That was all I can remember."

Passersby found Miss Warner lying unconscious in the street and took her to the Royal Infirmary where her condition was reported comfortable.

Miss Warner's home is in Amsterdam, N. Y.

Cape Is Candle-Lit

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 27 (AP)—Cape Cod was candle-lit in many spots last night after a power line break blacked out the famed resort strip from as far north as Duxbury to the tip at Provincetown. Heavy Sunday traffic was snarled in a number of communities as traffic lights blinked out.

'An Inspector Calls' Is Woodstock's Next

J. B. Priestley's expose on British family morals, An Inspector Calls, will be the Woodstock Actors' final offering of the season. The play will open tomorrow night and run through Sunday, Sept. 2.

Sharing star billing this week will be six Playhouse favorites: Van Williams, Howard Caine, Dorothy McLaughlin, Anna Leonard, John Sydow and Ray Stricklyn.

This week's offering, which is the noted author and playwright's latest stage piece, was first produced at London's celebrated Old Vic Theatre. It was later brought to Broadway with Thomas Mitchell where it was greeted with critical acclaim.

Priestley's play derives its name from the surprise visit of the mysterious Inspector Goole to the home of a British industrialist, Arthur Birling, where his daughter Sheila's festive engagement party is underway. Swift-following events topple the respected family from its pedestal.

Dorothy McLaughlin is cast as Mrs. Birling, Anna Leonard as Sheila, and Van Williams as her fiance Gerald Croft. Howard Caine will play the pompous industrialist, and John Sydow, who staged The Enchanted and The Respectful Prostitute, the inspector. The drama is directed by David Lifson, with setting by John Macgregor.

Crane Chorus Record To Be Broadcast Soon

Potsdam, Aug. 27—The State University Teachers College here announced today that a record of Norman Dello Joio's Psalm of David, sung by the college's Crane Chorus with Helen M. Hosmer conducting will be broadcast Monday, Sept. 3, at 8:05 p. m. over WQXR and the rural radio network throughout the state.

The college commissioned the work from the young American composer especially for the Crane Chorus of 250 mixed voices early in 1950. It had its world premiere in Potsdam at The Festival of the Arts this May.

The Psalm is based on a short theme which was used by Josquin Des Prez in a setting of the same text in the 16th century. The recording, which is divided into three parts and uses the Latin text from the Vulgate, takes an hour to perform.

It will be programmed with another of Mr. Polo's compositions. He is now professor of music at Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville.

"Junior" is a masculine suffix. If your mother-in-law does not object you could properly sign your name "Jane Doe, Younger." But otherwise you must be Jane (Formername) Doe.

Hats and Trimmings

Dear Mrs. Post: There are two questions which have been bandied back and forth in our group and no solutions found. (1) Should a woman guest wear a hat to an afternoon or evening wedding? (2) Also when is it wrong to wear the veiling down over part of the face? This is just a hat trimming.

Answer: (1) Afternoon — yes, always! Evening—a head covering of some sort, a church requirement. (2) Daytime, yes; not suitable in the evening.

Two Desserts?

Dear Mrs. Post: Lately I was at a lunch party where guests were offered a choice of two desserts. I think the ladies were quite happy about it! I know I would have been very unhappy hal I had to eat the dessert I turned down! Since, however, I've heard one of the ladies remark that such a thing as offering a choice of desserts was unheard of and very bad style. Will you give us the benefit of your remarks on the subject?

Answer: It is very unusual to offer two desserts—unless you mean a "dessert" followed by a fruit—which is not unheard of.

Church of Bride Correct

Dear Mrs. Post: Not long ago I read an article on the subject of wedding responsibilities and it said that when the bride and groom did not belong to the same church it should be the bridegroom's privilege to choose his church for the wedding if he so wished. Was this article by you?

Answer: Definitely NOT! The bride's family always chooses the church.

Unusual Catches Are Reported by Nimrods

Two area fishermen made unusual catches during the weekend.

About noontime on Saturday there was exhibited at the corner of West Strand and Canal street a large turtle taken on a line at the Ashokan Reservoir earlier that day. The turtle, still alive, measured more than three feet from its nose to the tip of its tail.

The other catch was reported from the Rosendale area, where a surprised angler reached into the water and pulled out a queerly-acting bass. It was found that the bass had half swallowed a sunfish. The smaller fish apparently was too big a mouthful for the bass and became stuck in its throat.

Czech Agents Told To Get Materials As Soon as Possible

London, Aug. 27 (AP)—Czechoslovakia has ordered her purchasing agents abroad to speed up procurement of 12 critical materials badly needed to keep her heavy industries rolling, authoritative sources report.

These sources said that the Ministry of Foreign Trade at Prague has told all commercial attaches and purchasing agents to speed up purchases of:

Aluminum, bauxite, glycerin, refined sulphur, all non-ferrous metals, ball bearings, industrial diamonds, gum arabic, alúminum anhydride (an acid base), and citric acid.

The order authorized paying above world market prices in order to secure industrial diamonds, large ball bearings, refined sulphur and raw tartar, the sources said.

Meanwhile, the west's tightening restrictions against exporting vital raw materials and equipment behind the Iron Curtain is reported to be causing critical shortages in Communist areas.

Clandestine Purchases

Qualified informants said that, in addition to publicly recognized purchasing agents, Iron Curtain countries are making purchases through clandestine agents.

In one west European country the Polish and Russian clandestine purchasing agents have been trying to outbid one another, these sources said.

For electrolytic copper of 99.9 per cent purity, the Polish purchaser is paying 12 to 15 per cent above world prices while his Russian competitor is paying 18 to 20 per cent premiums, the informants said. Middlemen who can arrange purchases are offered three per cent commissions.

Keenest bidding is reported for electrolytic copper, large ball bearings, refined sulphur and industrial diamonds.

The informants said the agents operate all over Europe, but concentrate on Italy and the Netherlands. Payment is in any hard currency desired, through accounts in Swiss banks, the sources said.

Motorists Report Various Thefts

Among thefts reported to police over the week-end was that of a sedan which was recovered shortly after the report.

Robert Lewis, of 75 Hasbrouck avenue, reported at 9:50 a. m., Sunday that his sedan had been taken from in front of his home between Saturday night and Sunday morning, and a short time later, it was reported recovered by the owner on West Union street.

Robert Powell, R.D., Kingston, and Frank Fay, 153 Linderman avenue, reported thefts from vehicles in the parking lot near the municipal auditorium.

Powell said a watch valued at $50 was stolen from his panel truck between 5 and 6 p. m. Saturday, and Fay said the glove compartment of his car had been rifled, but the only missing items were the keys to the car.

He Still Charges Quarter

Smyrna, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—A barber in this central New York village has been cutting hair for 50 years—at 25 cents a head. And, he says he sees "no reason to change." "I made a good living 50 years ago and I'm making a good living now," John Widger maintains. Widger works 15½ hours a day. He takes only a half hour for lunch and a nap.

Grahamsville Man Is Arrested as House Swindler

Paul F. King, 47, of Grahamsville, accused by a Sullivan county grand jury of operating a swindle in the sale of pre-fabricated homes, has been arrested in North Adams, Mass., and has refused to waive extradition, the Sullivan county sheriff's office reports. King was arraigned in Monticello last June after being indicted on eight separate counts. The first was for attempted grand larceny in the second degree and seven others were for second degree grand larceny. On arraignment the trial was adjourned until June 11 and he was released on $500 bail. He failed to appear and had been reported in various places in New England and upstate New York.

King, who operated in a wide area around Grahamsville, authorities claim represented himself as the head of a company called Associated Architectural Service of Grahamsville, which, he claimed, dealt in ready prepared housing materials. He would collect sums of about $200, police charge, as down payment for the cost of arranging and delivering the materials. He had been operating in this area some two or three years.

'An Inspector Calls' Is Woodstock's Next

J. B. Priestley's expose on British family morals, An Inspector Calls, will be the Woodstock Actors' final offering of the season. The play will open tomorrow night and run through Sunday, Sept. 2.

Sharing star billing this week will be six Playhouse favorites: Van Williams, Howard Caine, Dorothy McLaughlin, Anna Leonard, John Sydow and Ray Strickbyn.

This week's offering, which is the noted author and playwright's latest stage piece, was first produced at London's celebrated Old Vic Theatre. It was later brought to Broadway with Thomas Mitchell where it was greeted with critical acclaim.

Priestley's play derives its name from the surprise visit of the mysterious Inspector Goole to the home of a British industrialist, Arthur Birling, where his daughter Sheila's festive engagement party is underway. Swift-following events topple the respected family from its pedestal.

Dorothy McLaughlin is cast as Mrs. Birling, Anna Leonard as Sheila, and Van Williams as her fiance Gerald Croft. Howard Caine will play the pompous industrialist, and John Sydow, who staged The Enchanted and The Respectful Prostitute, the inspector. The drama is directed by David Lifson, with setting by John Macgregor.

Crane Chorus Record To Be Broadcast Soon

Potsdam, Aug. 27—The State University Teachers College here announced today that a record of Norman Dello Joio's Psalm of David, sung by the college's Crane Chorus with Helen M. Hosmer conducting will be broadcast Monday, Sept. 3, at 8:05 p. m. over WQXR and the rural radio network throughout the state.

The college commissioned the work from the young American composer especially for the Crane Chorus of 250 mixed voices early in 1950. It had its world premiere in Potsdam at The Festival of the Arts this May.

The Psalm is based on a short theme which was used by Josquin Des Prez in a setting of the same text in the 16th century. The recording, which is divided into three parts and uses the Latin text from the Vulgate, takes an hour to perform.

It will be programmed with another of Mr. Dello Joio's compositions. He is now professor of music at Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville.

Clandestine Purchases

Qualified informants said that, in addition to publicly recognized purchasing agents, Iron Curtain countries are making purchases through clandestine agents.

In one west European country the Polish and Russian clandestine purchasing agents have been trying to outbid one another, these sources said.

For electrolytic copper of 99.9 per cent purity, the Polish purchaser is paying 12 to 15 per cent above world prices while his Russian competitor is paying 18 to 20 per cent premiums, the informants said. Middlemen who can arrange purchases are offered three per cent commissions.

Keenest bidding is reported for electrolytic copper, large ball bearings, refined sulphur and industrial diamonds.

The informants said the agents operate all over Europe, but concentrate on Italy and the Netherlands. Payment is in any hard currency desired, through accounts in Swiss banks, the sources said.

Motorists Report Various Thefts

Among thefts reported to police over the week-end was that of a sedan which was recovered shortly after the report.

Robert Lewis, of 75 Hasbrouck avenue, reported at 9:50 a. m., Sunday that his sedan had been taken from in front of his home between Saturday night and Sunday morning, and a short time later, it was reported recovered by the owner on West Union street.

Robert Powell, R.D., Kingston, and Frank Fay, 153 Linderman avenue, reported thefts from vehicles in the parking lot near the municipal auditorium.

Powell said a watch valued at $50 was stolen from his panel truck between 5 and 6 p. m. Saturday, and Fay said the glove compartment of his car had been rifled, but the only missing items were the keys to the car.

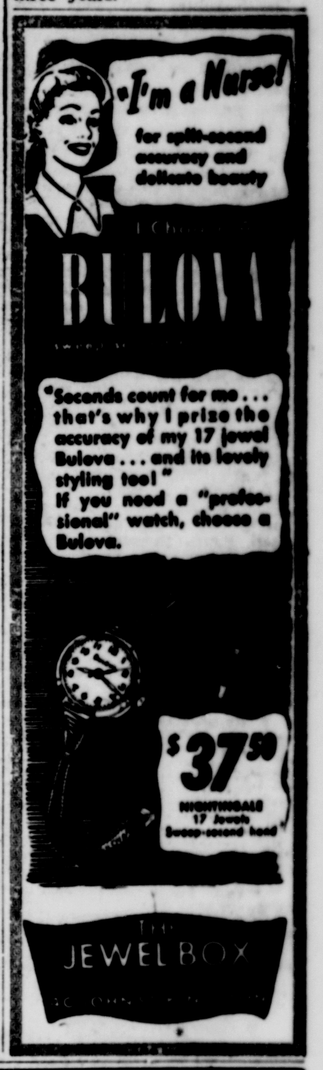

He Still Charges Quarter

Smyrna, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—A barber in this central New York village has been cutting hair for 50 years—at 25 cents a head. And, he says he sees "no reason to change." "I made a good living 50 years ago and I'm making a good living now," John Widger maintains. Widger works 15½ hours a day. He takes only a half hour for lunch and a nap.

Grahamsville Man Is Arrested as House Swindler

Paul F. King, 47, of Grahamsville, accused by a Sullivan county grand jury of operating a swindle in the sale of pre-fabricated homes, has been arrested in North Adams, Mass., and has refused to waive extradition, the Sullivan county sheriff's office reports. King was arraigned in Monticello last June after being indicted on eight separate counts. The first was for attempted grand larceny in the second degree and seven others were for second degree grand larceny. On arraignment the trial was adjourned until June 11 and he was released on $500 bail. He failed to appear and had been reported in various places in New England and upstate New York.

King, who operated in a wide area around Grahamsville, authorities claim represented himself as the head of a company called Associated Architectural Service of Grahamsville, which, he claimed, dealt in ready prepared housing materials. He would collect sums of about $200, police charge, as down payment for the cost of arranging and delivering the materials. He had been operating in this area some two or three years.

Miss Lillian Smith, William Cunningham, Are Married Here

Miss Lillian V. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton V. Smith, 20 Webster street, this city, and William Cunningham son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cunningham, Staatsburg, were married during an 11 a. m. ceremony Wednesday in St. Joseph's Church. The Rev. John D. Simmons, assistant pastor of that parish, officiated.

Musical selections, played by Mrs. Frank Rafferty, included O Promise Me and the traditional wedding marches.

Mr. Smith gave his daughter in marriage. She was dressed in a ballerina-length gown of frosted mousseline de soie, fashioned with a tiny fitted jacket, long pointed sleeves, and a bouffant skirt. Her chapel-length silk illusion veil was fastened to a half bonnet of starched lace and net trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Margaret McCabe of Utica was her maid of honor. Miss McCabe wore a yellow marquisette ballerina-length gown trimmed with small red roses, and a matching hat. She carried a bouquet of American beauty roses.

Serving as flower girl was the bride's sister, Sharon Ann Smith, dressed in a Kate Greenway frock of pale green taffeta and net trimmed with pink forget-me-nots. She wore a headpiece of pink roses and ferns, and carried a basket of pink roses.

James Schulhoff of Clinton Corners was best man.

A reception followed at the Governor Clinton Hotel. On their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham will visit Long Beach and San Francisco, Calif. They will make their home in Cleveland, Ohio. The bride's traveling ensemble included a sheer cotton dress, a blue and white checked topcoat, and blue accessories.

Mrs. Cunningham is an alumna of Kingston High School and New Paltz State Teachers College. The groom, a veteran of World War 2, attended Champlain College and was graduated from Mohawk College.

wished to deprive scurrilous labor-baiters of an occasion to mock a fine old servant of the Worker. But a little before this, Jimmy Petrillo had "accepted" a mansion from his executive board in Chicago and had been socked for a tax in the price of the house and fixtures as income. By this precedent, Daniel, Rex, would have been clouted square in the plexus avaricious, his most sensitive spot. It was better business to let the union buy, furnish and maintain his winter palace, and pay the servants, the lawn-boy and the bills for provisions, not excluding antique brandy, which is just what an old king needs for his bronchial trouble. Anyway, this old king finds it helpful.

All his subjects have a solemn contract written into their constitution to support their king in luxury absolutely without limit, and his wife, the queen, as well, wherever their fancy takes them, at home or abroad as long as they live. There is almost no extravagance that the subjects are not bound to provide for Dan Tobin and his wife, at home or abroad, the year around and this portion of their living is not income or taxable. It is not even subject to accounting by Dan to the government. The union pays. He doesn't even have to touch the money.

He and she also have the privilege of the seaside summer palace at Quincy, Mass., built largely by non-union labor. Royalty do not always avail themselves of their Petites Trianons and Tsarskoe Selos, but it is nice to know that they are always in readiness.

And now here is the Magnificent Gimmick which makes this unimaginable old fraud one of the richest men in the world.

A demure little clause in the constitution says that if he ever is forced to retire "for any reason of health" he shall become an "advisor" at the rate of remuneraction "set forth in the constitution."

The horny-handed freighter pushing a boxcar over an icy mountain may wonder what that means. It means that Tobin is one of the wiliest fakers on earth. Because that rate or remuneration is $30,000 a year plus all expenses for unlimited travel for himself and queen as long as he lives. A retirement policy with insurance company provided that income would cost millions, but the toilers in the Teamsters' Union are bound to give all this to Dan and his wife for nothing. This goes also for every poor captive dragged in by the Royal Goons and forced to sign a blank for membership.

Korean Amputee Will Be Married

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 27 (AP)—Pvt. Hubert Reeves, 19-year-old quadruple amputee of the Korean War, will be married next month to an 18-year-old girl he met through letters she wrote him while he was in a hospital.

The bride-elect is Beverly Jean Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Hall of Wilmington, Ill.

The Halls announced the engagement yesterday and said the couple will be wed Sept. 9 at the First Baptist Church in Joliet. A reception will follow at the Cantigny Post of Veterans of Foreign Wars in Joliet.

The young infantryman said Miss Hall wrote him while he was being treated at Valley Forge State Hospital at Phoenixville, Pa., last March. On returning to his Joliet home, he said, he looked her up and the romance blossomed.

Reeves was in combat for less than a month. His limbs were frozen when he was captured and left dead during a Chinese Red break-through last winter. He lost parts of all four limbs.

Reports Daughter Dead

Charleston, W. Va., Aug 27 (AP)—State Auditor Edgar B. Simms said yesterday he has been notified of the death of his daughter, Mrs. John Hayden, 34, of (9833 64th Ave.) Forest Hills, L. I., at Montego Bay in Jamaica. Simms said his daughter was a New York free lance writer who published as Shelly Hayden. Her husband was also described as a free lance writer. Simms said word of his daughter's death reached him by cable from Jamaica, but because of poor communications he has not been able to learn if she died in the hurricane which battered the island last week.

The Annual Lament

By FRANK TRIPP

This is a swell spot where I've been all Summer. Seems nice, at last, to sit down and look at it. It must be nearing time to move back to town. I can always tell. For years I've just got around to enjoy the place, my chores done, by Labor Day.

Not all done; couldn't possibly accomplish that in one Summer. I don't know if you're handy around the house or not. It has its drawbacks. When a woman knows you can fix things she never runs out of things to fix. If she should run out she loans you to the neighbors.

That isn't so bad when the neighbors have tools. But most always when you report for a gratis job you have to go loaded down like a plumber. If not, when you ask for a screwdriver they bring you their only one—a thin dime; and if you need pliers they produce a pair of eyebrow pluckers. There ought to be a clause in every marriage ceremony, "With this tool kit, I thee wed."

I can report the usual Summer, except that it went faster. Each succeeding one gets shorter. Now that it's over, seems only yesterday that we planned to do all of the things that there hasn't been time to do.

* * *

"ALL ON ACCOUNT of those cussed boats," says Fanny. I guess she has something there. I'll admit spending the equal of three weeks "improving" the Mary-Nan; then three more tearing out the improvements so the old gal would run again. If she could talk, what a lot of ammunition she could give Fanny.

Won't be long before we'll haul her up and all will be sadlike around our cozy navy. There'll be no scurrying little feet to dirty the decks; no busy little hands to tangle ropes and drop things in the lake. Nobody to yell bloody murder at. No tots to watch 'lest they walk off the dock. No kids coming in with snarled fishlines and a three-inch rockie.

There'll be quiet everywhere. Just the cautious dip of fishermen's oars; just the lap of lazy ripples on the deserted beach; just the peace that I wished for all Summer.

Then the stern realization that I didn't want it at all—that I miss the little rascals; that I'm lonely when they're gone.

The Summer dwellers' houses will be shuttered; their barking outboards tucked away. Happy teen-agers won't disturb our rest, returning at all hours. Did we grumble at them? Sorry, 'cause we'll miss 'em. Strange, we never think of that until they're gone.

Not strange at all. Just human frailty, that we think of so many things too late; think too late to tell friends we love them; think too late to heal a wound or retract a hasty word.

* * *

EVERY FALL, as we stay on and others go, loneliness besets us. Then nature snatches us from our mournful reverie. It bedecks itself in brilliant hues which change with each dawn into a gorgeous new tapestry.

Even the restless lake seems to calm beneath Indian Summer sun and nippy nights. The green hills spot with brilliant crimson, then turn to blending browns that defy the artist's brush. It gets cold; the bass begin to bite.

Golden leaves shroud mother earth; beneath them verdure sleeps. It is not a shroud of death. It is a glorious cloak of immortality to whet our faith in life eternal. Thus constant nature humbles impatient man.

For Spring will come again—the buds, the leaves, the flowers. Crocus, arbutus and trillium will peek from their Winter beds. The ice will go, the trout will run. The children will be back. There'll be laughter, there'll be life, there'll be noise.

There'll be time next year for me to do everything that Fanny asks. I'll leave the Mary-Nan alone; enjoy her as she is. I'll never yell at the kids again; they can tear down the whole darned place. I'll meet returning roisterers with coffee and hot dogs. I never want it to be quiet again.

"Wait a minute," Fanny pipes, "You old crook, you said all that last year."

Well—I guess I did.

Novelist's Death To Be Checked as To Fatal Poison

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Several years ago, Novelist Francis Sill Wickware started to write a magazine article on the ease with which dangerous drugs could be bought "outside of pharmacies."

In his research for the article, he bought a large quantity of poisons and other drugs.

"Joyce, I've taken poison."

Then he collapsed at her feet and was dead when police arrived. Detectives listed the death as an apparent suicide.

Mrs. Wickware, who told police of his dramatic death and the article on poison, said her husband had not appeared despondent and gave no indication he was contemplating suicide.

A three-inch vial labelled "chloral hydrate" was found near the body, but a medical examiner said he doubted the contents were this drug, commonly known as "knock-out drops."

Wickware was the author of "Tuesday to Bed," a psychological novel, and "Dangerous Ground," a murder mystery. He also wrote numerous articles for national magazines."

He was an associate editor of Fortune Magazine from 1937 to 1942.

Mrs. Wickware, his third wife, said the article on poisons never was published.

Police said an autopsy will be performed.

Golden leaves shroud mother earth; beneath them verdure sleeps. It is not a shroud of death. It is a glorious cloak of immortality to whet our faith in life eternal. Thus constant nature humbles impatient man.

For Spring will come again—the buds, the leaves, the flowers. Crocus, arbutus and trillium will peek from their Winter beds. The ice will go, the trout will run. The children will be back. There'll be laughter, there'll be life, there'll be noise.

There'll be time next year for me to do everything that Fanny asks. I'll leave the Mary-Nan alone; enjoy her as she is. I'll never yell at the kids again; they can tear down the whole darned place. I'll meet returning roisterers with coffee and hot dogs. I never want it to be quiet again.

"Wait a minute," Fanny pipes, "You old crook, you said all that last year."

Well—I guess I did.

Divorce Is Final

Cuernavaca, Mexico, Aug 27 (AP)—Barabra Hutton's newest divorce became final Saturday when an attorney for Prince Igor Troubetzkoy appeared in court here and said his client would no longer contest its validity. He was her fourth husband.

Novelist's Death To Be Checked as To Fatal Poison

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Several years ago, Novelist Francis Sill Wickware started to write a magazine article on the ease with which dangerous drugs could be bought "outside of pharmacies."

Then he collapsed at her feet and was dead when police arrived. Detectives listed the death as an apparent suicide.

Mrs. Wickware, who told police of his dramatic death and the article on poison, said her husband had not appeared despondent and gave no indication he was contemplating suicide.

A three-inch vial labelled "chloral hydrate" was found near the body, but a medical examiner said he doubted the contents were this drug, commonly known as "knock-out drops."

He was an associate editor of Fortune Magazine from 1937 to 1942.

Mrs. Wickware, his third wife, said the article on poisons never was published.

George Hughes and Leon Randall Capture City Club Golf Titles

Meet Labor Day In 36-Hole Test For City Crown

Hughes Nips Van Gonsic; Randall Stops Van Aken

A couple of Ulster county's finest amateur golfers are club champions today and are poised for the 36-hole city Kingston city championship playoff on Labor Day.

George Hughes turned back a determined challenge by veteran John Van Gonsic to capture the Twaalfskill Golf Club crown, 2 and 1, while Leon Randall downed Bill Van Aken, 3 and 2, in the Wiltwyck finals.

Both are new champions, Hughes succeeding Alvin Boice and Randall taking over from the man he beat Sunday.

Strange Ending

Van Aken's reign as Wiltwyck and city king pin ended under bizarre circumstances. Two holes behind Randall after overcoming a four-hole deficit in the morning round and moving three-up on the outgoing nine in the afternoon, Van Aken hooked his tee shot into the woods on the seventh hole.

Confronted with an unplayable lie, the defending champion conceded the hole and with it went the crown to Randall, who won his first title in 1949.

On the final swing, he birdied the first hole for a halve, dropped the second and from there on out his game fell apart. Bad shots on the third, fourth and fifth and the horrendous seventh brought his reign to an inglorious conclusion.

Randall Opens Fast

Randall fired an opening 35 in the morning and by the end of 12 holes was 4-up. A rout seemed imminent but Van Aken rallied nicely to square the match at 18.

The lanky kid with the pleasing smile would not buckle in the face of adversity in the afternoon and shot according to the book as Van Aken began to slip. He had a 29 for his 7-hole score when the match terminated.

At Twaalfskill, Hughes who was 3-up at the end of 18, increased his margin to four on the 19th hole but the dramatics were to come later.

Van Gonsic Rallies

A birdie-four on the long 5th put Van Gonsic only one down and they both played the short 6th brilliantly for threes.

The break of the match occurred on the par-5 7th (34th) when both were well down the middle on the drives. Hughes powered a 4-wood just across the green but Van Gonsic's fairway shot was low and strong, sailing across the green into the bushes on the right. He needed a stroke to get out while Hughes ran down his birdie to go 2-up and dormie the match.

Van Gonsic's pitch shot to the eighth (35th) green landed pin-high, five feet away, and a birdie-3 here would have sliced Hughes' lead to one stroke and given the veteran a chance to square the match on the 36th. Hughes was across the green but cliped back safely his four, while Van Gonsic missed his putt and the match ended.

In these days of highly debatable telephone resignations and questionable legality of fond farewells over Alexander Graham Bell's little toy, it might be in order for the Kingston baseball public to honor a 78-year-old gentleman and sports lover who had the courage to sacrifice $2,000 of his hard-earned life savings on the altar of professional baseball.

We mean Harry L. Edson, of course.

And we can't think of a better date than Sunday, Sept. 2 when the Colonials terminate the Can-Am League home season at municipal stadium.

To some people $2,000 is just peanuts. To others it represents a staggering sum that is not achieved even in a lifetime of toil and industry.

Before we are accused of "not reporting all the facts" a stereotyped pronouncement that is given much ballyhoo these days, let's set the record straight. Harry Edson posted $1,000 during the 1950 season and another thousand just a few days ago when the good ship Colonial was foundering on the rocks of financial distress.

Harry L. Edson has spent a decade with Kingston baseball promotions without ever receiving a cent's pay for endless hours of work as the ex-officio member of the various groups that have promoted baseball in the city.

A sharp gentleman with a pad and pencil, he has maintained order and sanity in a paper work situation that might otherwise have degenerated to chaos and confusion.

The men who remain with Kingston Baseball Club, Inc., owe it to baseball and this grand old man of 78 to honor him on Sept. 2 and to make sure that he is returned his $1,000 at the earliest moment.

•Flotsam and Jetsam:

Bud Culloton's recent five-day stay in Pittsburgh for the reunion of the 1925 Pittsburgh Pirate National League championship team, was a happy reminder to Bob Russell of Saugerties. In a letter, Bob, only recently moved into benedict ranks, recalls that his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Fabian L. Russell, were married on the day that Culloton's signing with the Pirates was announced. Bob sent along a clipping of the item which appeared in the Saugerties Daily Post on July 26, 1924:

"'Bud' Culloton, ace of the Kingston Colonials pitching staff for the past four seasons, left Kingston Friday to join the Pittsburgh team of the National League. 'Bud' met the Pittsburgh club on their way to Boston where they are scheduled to play a four-game series. Culloton's work against the Pirates in their exhibition game at Kingston on June 15 aroused the interest of Manager Bill McKechnie, who immediately saw a big league prospect in the Kingston hurler. Since then Culloton has been under observation of Pittsburgh scouts and his work has been of such a nature that McKechnie was advised to sign him."

•Of Men and Mice:

Tony DeLisio, the Woodstock Country Club President, had a smile that wide when Armand Farina stormed home winner of the Woodstock Open on Friday. Wonder why? Tom McNelis, the official scorer at the stadium, has one sure fire column awaiting him when he assums duties as sports editor of the Fordham University Ram this fall. Big Tom Casagrande, former Ram pitching ace, has been burning up the Interstate League with Wilmington, Del., of the Philadelphia Phillies farm chain. A $40,000 bonus rookie, Casagrande is more than making good as a pitcher. He has hurled 10 and seven-inning no-hitters and four of his first 10 victories were shutouts.

Notre Dame once more is as loaded as a Texas oil man, but Coach Frank Leahy has a new crying towel. The old one was worn out last season with real, honest-to-goodness tears.

The manufacturer must be the same, though. The Master's cryptic observations still remain unchanged. Such as, when speaking of the Nov. 17 clash with North Carolina:

Greys to Have Pine, Phillips

Ken Pine and Gene Phillips, two of the best known hurlers in the semi-pro ranks, will be ready to pitch against Whitey Ford and Tommy Maines' All Stars in the doubleheader Wednesday night at municipal stadium, Manager Johnny Gentile of the Greys said today.

Pine, a great control flinger, blanked the powerful Bushwicks, 1-0 on Sunday, Aug. 19. Gene Phillips, a Bushwick regular for years, has been in Kingston in the past.

Ford, 1950 rookie southpaw sensation of the New York Yankees, is expected to reach municipal stadium about 6 p. m. on Wednesday. He is serving in the Army at Fort Monmouth.

Feature Rained Out At Rhinebeck Track

Rain washed out the two feature events, after six preliminary races had been run off, Saturday at the Rhinebeck Speedway and track officials announced a double attraction for next Saturday.

A 100-lap pleasure car classic with new cars from 1946 to 1951 will be run at the Speedway Saturday afternoon. A heavy program of stocks and Non-Fords is slated with a 50-lap stock feature at night. These races are run in conjunction with the Dutchess County Fair.

The remainder of last Saturday's card will be added to the Saturday, Sept. 8 meet.

Yannone Feature Winner at Airport

Practically drives itself. Fordomatic thinks for you. It automatically provides a countless number of ratios through which engine power is fed to the rear wheels—automatically adjusts the ratio as needed to give you a new kind of performance, new smoothness.

Easier rocking! It's even easier to "rock" out of sand, snow, or mud with Fordomatic than with Conventional drive. All you do is flick the drive selector between Low (LO) and Reverse (R). Fordomatic's safer, too, because like conventional drives, forward and reverse positions are separated by neutral.

You're boss every second! Fordomatic obeys your every wish. Step down on the accelerator and you get an extra spurt of power for hill climbing and passing. Going downhill you can shift to low at any speed for extra engine braking.

It's a gas-saving powerhouse! Fordomatic's lower rear axle ratio gives the fewest engine revolutions per mile of any car in its field with an automatic transmission. Fordomatic's automatic intermediate gear provides smooth, fast economical "getaway" without wasteful engine racing.

•Of Men and Mice:

Tony DeLisio, the Woodstock Country Club President, had a smile that wide when Armand Farina stormed home winner of the Woodstock Open on Friday. Wonder why? Tom McNelis, the official scorer at the stadium, has one sure fire column awaiting him when he assums duties as sports editor of the Fordham University Ram this fall. Big Tom Casagrande, former Ram pitching ace, has been burning up the Interstate League with Wilmington, Del., of the Philadelphia Phillies farm chain. A $40,000 bonus rookie, Casagrande is more than making good as a pitcher. He has hurled 10 and seven-inning no-hitters and four of his first 10 victories were shutouts.

Notre Dame once more is as loaded as a Texas oil man, but Coach Frank Leahy has a new crying towel. The old one was worn out last season with real, honest-to-goodness tears.

The manufacturer must be the same, though. The Master's cryptic observations still remain unchanged. Such as, when speaking of the Nov. 17 clash with North Carolina:

Greys to Have Pine, Phillips

Ken Pine and Gene Phillips, two of the best known hurlers in the semi-pro ranks, will be ready to pitch against Whitey Ford and Tommy Maines' All Stars in the doubleheader Wednesday night at municipal stadium, Manager Johnny Gentile of the Greys said today.

The Kingston Police nine and Cordts Hose clash in the first game of the twinbill.

Pine, a great control flinger, blanked the powerful Bushwicks, 1-0 on Sunday, Aug. 19. Gene Phillips, a Bushwick regular for years, has been in Kingston in the past.

Ford, 1950 rookie southpaw sensation of the New York Yankees, is expected to reach municipal stadium about 6 p. m. on Wednesday. He is serving in the Army at Fort Monmouth.

Feature Rained Out At Rhinebeck Track

Rain washed out the two feature events, after six preliminary races had been run off, Saturday at the Rhinebeck Speedway and track officials announced a double attraction for next Saturday.

A 100-lap pleasure car classic with new cars from 1946 to 1951 will be run at the Speedway Saturday afternoon. A heavy program of stocks and Non-Fords is slated with a 50-lap stock feature at night. These races are run in conjunction with the Dutchess County Fair.

The remainder of last Saturday's card will be added to the Saturday, Sept. 8 meet.

Yannone Feature Winner at Airport

FORDOMATIC OUTGOES THEM ALL!

TORQUE CONVERTER PLUS AUTOMATIC GEARS

Combines best features of previous drives! Fordomatic gives you two automatic drives in one—a torque converter for smoothness—and automatic gears for get-up-and-GO and gas savings. You get just the power you need, when you need it!

Fordomatic Drive optional at extra cost. Equipment, accessories and trim subject to change without notice.

Practically drives itself. Fordomatic thinks for you. It automatically provides a countless number of ratios through which engine power is fed to the rear wheels—automatically adjusts the ratio as needed to give you a new kind of performance, new smoothness.

Easier rocking! It's even easier to "rock" out of sand, snow, or mud with Fordomatic than with Conventional drive. All you do is flick the drive selector between Low (LO) and Reverse (R). Fordomatic's safer, too, because like conventional drives, forward and reverse positions are separated by neutral.

You're boss every second! Fordomatic obeys your every wish. Step down on the accelerator and you get an extra spurt of power for hill climbing and passing. Going downhill you can shift to low at any speed for extra engine braking.

It's a gas-saving powerhouse! Fordomatic's lower rear axle ratio gives the fewest engine revolutions per mile of any car in its field with an automatic transmission. Fordomatic's automatic intermediate gear provides smooth, fast economical "getaway" without wasteful engine racing.

Ostrander Hurls 3-Hitter to Give Colonials Split With Oneonta

Wins Sunday Game 4-1; Red Sox Take Saturday Set, 13-8

Score Five Runs In Eleventh Inning

Rick Ostrander stopped the league-leading Oneonta Red Sox, 4 to 1, with a brilliant three-hitter last night at municipal stadium to give the Colonials a split in the two-game week-end set.

The Red Sox captured a 3 hour, 30 minute marathon, 13 to 8, in 11 innings before 1500 fans in the Giveaway Night program on Saturday.

Glovers Tonight

The Colonials take on the Gloversville Glovers tonight at 8:30 in conjunction with National Guard Night and Saugerties Night. The Gloversville series concludes Tuesday. The final home game for Kingston is carded on Sunday, Sept. 2, with Pittsfield.

Ostrander lost a shutout last night principally because of his own wildness as the Colonials pinned back the ears of 18-game winner, Joe Ross. The Colonial righty loaded the sacks with three walks in the second and Bob Atwood drove home a run with a long fly.

Andy Karl's two-out triple in the fifth and Arnie Spence's single in the ninth were the only other Oneonta safeties.

An infield error accounted for Kingston's first run in the fourth and in the sixth they put together doubles by Manager Johnny Sosh and Dave Ocarr, a single by Gene Zubrinski and an infield out for two runs. Kingston's final marker in the seventh was the result of Johnny DeFresco's double and Scotty Tortoriello's single.

Ostrander, who fired a two-hitter in his Colonial debut, walked four and fanned two.

Five in Eleventh

Oneonta pulled Saturday's weird contest out of the fire with a five-run rally in the eleventh. Kingston led 7-6 at the end of the eighth but the Sox moved in front, 8-7 on Dick Karl's two-run single in the top of the ninth. A balk by relief pitcher, Frank Gavel, permitted the tying Colonial run to score in the bottom of the ninth to send the game into extra innings.

Pete Zollo got by the 10th inning safely but in the 11th two successive errors by DiFresco and Zubrinski after a single and double opened the floodgates and five runs poured across before Charlie Borden put out the fire. Kingston got two men on base in the bottom of the 11th but failed to score.

The real story of Kingston's loss in the Saturday game was 18 men left on bases. Scotty Tortoriello paced a 15-hit Colonial attack with three singles. Spence had two singles to go with his homer for the Red Sox.

Yankees, Giants Tie for First; Only Two Games Left on Schedule

Deadlock Seems Set for 2nd Half

With only two games remaining on the regular schedule, there is a strong possibility that the Yankees and Giants will finish in a first place tie in the second half of the Little League pennant race.

The clubs are currently deadlocked with five wins and three losses each as the result of week-end victories.

The Yankees pushed the Red Sox out of first place, 5 to 2, behind Duke Semilof and Tony Turck, while the Giants enjoyed one big inning to edge the Dodgers, 4 to 3, with Joe Reynolds besting Glenn Newell and Tony Amato.

Giants are scheduled to play the Red Soax on Tuesday, with the Yankees and Dodgers closing out the regular schedule on Wednesday.

Giants Rally

The Giants rallied with four runs in the third inning after the Dodgers had moved ahead, 3-0, in the first. Joe Reynolds doubled and Tony Amato powered a homer. Pete Blanschan was safe on Fibber Davitt's error and Joe Hoffman and George Norton singled and doubled in succession.

In the second game, the Yankees scored three runs in the first to give Tony Turck his eighth straight victory. Turck went to centerfield after posting a 3-2 lead, with Duke Semilof pitching five scoreless innings and striking out 10.

The Yankees picked up their three runs in the first on four consecutive singles by Don Ashdown, Tony Turck, Ronnie Ashdown and Charlie Bishop and an outfield error.

Tony Amato and George Norton each pounded two hits for the Giants. Don Ashdown, Tony Turck and Charlie Bishop clubbed two apiece for the Yankees, while Bill Cragan and Lorenzo Giannuzzo had two for the Red Sox.

Place First in Annual Swimfest At Williams Lake

Thorpe Fights Off Kelder Challenge

Merle Thorpe of Rosendale and Altrude Palmer of New Paltz are the newly crowned individual swimming champions of Ulster county.

Team honors went to the Albany Swimming Club, while Rocco Cirigliano of the New York A.C. was the individual point leader with 14. His younger brother, Caesar, scored nine.

The races were sponsored jointly by the Williams' Lake Athletic Club, the American Legion and Kiwanis Club and were sanctioned by the Adirondack District of the AAU.

Kelder Threatens

Thorpe, defending champion in the Legion 100-yard freestyle race, had to shake off a determined challenge by young Gil Kelder to retain his crown.

They were locked in a tie at the halfway mark but Thorpe's greater experience served him well on the turn and he picked up a slight lead. Kelder made his final bid at the three-quarters mark but Thorpe finished with a strong kick to finish inches ahead of the youngster.

Thorpe's winning time of 1 minute, 4 seconds, was eight-tenths of a second behind the 1950 clocking. The record for the race is 59.5 seconds set by Joe Heidcamp in 1942.

Heidcamp, five-time winner of the feature, finished third.

Palmer Rallies

Altrude Palmer overhauled Betty Raisner at the halfway mark in the Kiwanis feature and won going away. Gertrude Linck of Kingston was third.

The Cirigliano brothers of the New York A.C. proved iron men who competed in all the open events. Rocco, the older of the two, captured the 100-yard breast stroke and the 400-yard freestyle and placed second in the 100-yard freestyle and third in the 100-yard backstroke. His younger brother, 14-year-old Caesar, copped the 50-yard freestyle for boys under 15, took second in the 100-yard backstroke and third in the 400-yard freestyle.

Trophies Presented

Gloria Leinweber of Cottekill and Edward Williams of Williams' Lake were awarded prizes for scoring the highest total of points in the summer long swimming conducted at Williams' Lake.

The Scoreboard

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Giants' sensational 14-game winning streak today projected the National League pennant race smack into the limelight with the American League's tight flag chase.

Manager Leo Durocher's pennant-hungry Giants swept a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs yesterday, 5-4 and 5-1, to chop the once succulent lead of the Brooklyn Dodgers to six games. The Dodgers split with the tail-end Pittsburgh Pirates, winning the nightcap, 4-3, in ten innings, after blowing the opener, 12-11.

Meanwhile, the American League race remained in status quo as the Cleveland Indians retained their one-game lead over the New York Yankees by splitting a doubleheader with the Boston Red Sox. The Red Sox, trailing by five games, won the first game, 5-0, but the Indians took the second, 2-1. The Yanks divided with the Chicago White Sox, losing the opener, 3-2, and winning the nightcap, 8-6.

In other American League games, the Washington Senators swept a pair from the St. Louis Browns, 9-3 and 9-1, and the Detroit Tigers defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 6-0.

Remaining National League games saw the St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves and the Philadelphia Phils and Cincinnati Reds split doubleheaders. The Cards beat the Braves, 12-10, but lost the second game, 9-1. The Phils edged the Reds, 2-0, after Cincinnati had won the first game, 4-2.

Westrum Hits Two

Two home runs by Wes Westrum and one by Don Mueller accounted for all of the Giants' runs in their first-game triumph. Westrum won the game with a two-out homer in the ninth.

Jim Hearn limited the Cubs to six hits in the nightcap as the Giants compiled their longest winning streak since the 1936 champs won 15 straight.

The Giants broke a 1-1 tie in the second game with three runs in the fourth inning on four singles and a long fly. Willie Mays stole home with the Giants' final run in the sixth.

Brooklyn blew a 9-2 lead in dropping the opener. The Pirates jumped on Don Newcombe and Clyde King for eight runs in the seventh inning with Bill Howerton's three-run homer climaxing the rally.

Dodgers Rally

The Dodgers were on the brink of another defeat in the nightcap but Andy Pafko smashed a homer with one out in the ninth to tie the score and Jackie Robinson broke it up in the tenth with a one-out homer off Ted Wilks.

Lefty Bill Wight blanked the Indians on five hits in the opener at Cleveland before 75,997 fans, largest crowd of the season. Bob Feller, gunning for his 21st victory, went down to his sixth defeat.

The Indians collected ony three hits off Leo Kieley and Ellis Kinder in the nightcap but two of them were home runs by Luke Easter and Sam Chapman. Bob Lemon, with help from Mike Garcia, gained his 16th victory.

Ed Robinson and little Nellie Fox ruined the Yanks in the opener at Chicago. Robinson homered in the eighth to tie the score at 2-2 and Fox doubled home Don Lenhardt with the winning run in the ninth.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Pitching—Niles Jordan, Phils, pitched the Philadelphia Phils to a 2-0, three-hit victory over Cincinnati in his major league debut.

Ostrander Hurls 3-Hitter to Give Colonials Split With Oneonta

Wins Sunday Game 4-1; Red Sox Take Saturday Set, 13-8

Score Five Runs In Eleventh Inning

Rick Ostrander stopped the league-leading Oneonta Red Sox, 4 to 1, with a brilliant three-hitter last night at municipal stadium to give the Colonials a split in the two-game week-end set.

The Red Sox captured a 3 hour, 30 minute marathon, 13 to 8, in 11 innings before 1500 fans in the Giveaway Night program on Saturday.

Glovers Tonight

The Colonials take on the Gloversville Glovers tonight at 8:30 in conjunction with National Guard Night and Saugerties Night. The Gloversville series concludes Tuesday. The final home game for Kingston is carded on Sunday, Sept. 2, with Pittsfield.

Ostrander lost a shutout last night principally because of his own wildness as the Colonials pinned back the ears of 18-game winner, Joe Ross. The Colonial righty loaded the sacks with three walks in the second and Bob Atwood drove home a run with a long fly.

Andy Karl's two-out triple in the fifth and Arnie Spence's single in the ninth were the only other Oneonta safeties.

An infield error accounted for Kingston's first run in the fourth and in the sixth they put together doubles by Manager Johnny Sosh and Dave Ocarr, a single by Gene Zubrinski and an infield out for two runs. Kingston's final marker in the seventh was the result of Johnny DeFresco's double and Scotty Tortoriello's single.

Ostrander, who fired a two-hitter in his Colonial debut, walked four and fanned two.

Five in Eleventh

Oneonta pulled Saturday's weird contest out of the fire with a five-run rally in the eleventh. Kingston led 7-6 at the end of the eighth but the Sox moved in front, 8-7 on Dick Karl's two-run single in the top of the ninth. A balk by relief pitcher, Frank Gavel, permitted the tying Colonial run to score in the bottom of the ninth to send the game into extra innings.

Pete Zollo got by the 10th inning safely but in the 11th two successive errors by DiFresco and Zubrinski after a single and double opened the floodgates and five runs poured across before Charlie Borden put out the fire. Kingston got two men on base in the bottom of the 11th but failed to score.

The game consumed 3½ hours, not including a 40-minute recess because of a downpour at the end of the fifth inning.

The real story of Kingston's loss in the Saturday game was 18 men left on bases. Scotty Tortoriello paced a 15-hit Colonial attack with three singles. Spence had two singles to go with his homer for the Red Sox.

Yankees, Giants Tie for First; Only Two Games Left on Schedule

Deadlock Seems Set for 2nd Half

With only two games remaining on the regular schedule, there is a strong possibility that the Yankees and Giants will finish in a first place tie in the second half of the Little League pennant race.

The clubs are currently deadlocked with five wins and three losses each as the result of week-end victories.

The Yankees pushed the Red Sox out of first place, 5 to 2, behind Duke Semilof and Tony Turck, while the Giants enjoyed one big inning to edge the Dodgers, 4 to 3, with Joe Reynolds besting Glenn Newell and Tony Amato.

Giants are scheduled to play the Red Soax on Tuesday, with the Yankees and Dodgers closing out the regular schedule on Wednesday.

Giants Rally

The Giants rallied with four runs in the third inning after the Dodgers had moved ahead, 3-0, in the first. Joe Reynolds doubled and Tony Amato powered a homer. Pete Blanschan was safe on Fibber Davitt's error and Joe Hoffman and George Norton singled and doubled in succession.

In the second game, the Yankees scored three runs in the first to give Tony Turck his eighth straight victory. Turck went to centerfield after posting a 3-2 lead, with Duke Semilof pitching five scoreless innings and striking out 10.

The Yankees picked up their three runs in the first on four consecutive singles by Don Ashdown, Tony Turck, Ronnie Ashdown and Charlie Bishop and an outfield error.

Tony Amato and George Norton each pounded two hits for the Giants, Don Ashdown, Tony Turck and Charlie Bishop clubbed two apiece for the Yankees, while Bill Cragan and Lorenzo Giannuzzo had two for the Red Sox.

Place First in Annual Swimfest At Williams Lake

Thorpe Fights Off Kelder Challenge

Merle Thorpe of Rosendale and Altrude Palmer of New Paltz are the newly crowned individual swimming champions of Ulster county.

Thorpe captured the American Legion trophy, symbolic of the trophy, by defeating 15-year-old Gilbert Kelder of Rosendale by a scant margin in the annual Williams' Lake Swimfest on Sunday.

Team honors went to the Albany Swimming Club, while Rocco Cirigliano of the New York A.C. was the individual point leader with 14. His younger brother, Caesar, scored nine.

The races were sponsored jointly by the Williams' Lake Athletic Club, the American Legion and Kiwanis Club and were sanctioned by the Adirondack District of the AAU.

Kelder Threatens

Thorpe, defending champion in the Legion 100-yard freestyle race, had to shake off a determined challenge by young Gil Kelder to retain his crown.

They were locked in a tie at the halfway mark but Thorpe's greater experience served him well on the turn and he picked up a slight lead. Kelder made his final bid at the three-quarters mark but Thorpe finished with a strong kick to finish inches ahead of the youngster.

Thorpe's winning time of 1 minute, 4 seconds, was eight-tenths of a second behind the 1950 clocking. The record for the race is 59.5 seconds set by Joe Heidcamp in 1942.

Heidcamp, five-time winner of the feature, finished third.

Palmer Rallies

Altrude Palmer overhauled Betty Raisner at the halfway mark in the Kiwanis feature and won going away. Gertrude Linck of Kingston was third.

The Cirigliano brothers of the New York A.C. proved iron men who competed in all the open events. Rocco, the older of the two, captured the 100-yard breast stroke and the 400-yard freestyle and placed second in the 100-yard freestyle and third in the 100-yard backstroke. His younger brother, 14-year-old Caesar, copped the 50-yard freestyle for boys under 15, took second in the 100-yard backstroke and third in the 400-yard freestyle.

Trophies Presented

Gloria Leinweber of Cottekill and Edward Williams of Williams' Lake were awarded prizes for scoring the highest total of points in the summer long swimming conducted at Williams' Lake.

The Scoreboard

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Giants' sensational 14-game winning streak today projected the National League pennant race smack into the limelight with the American League's tight flag chase.

Manager Leo Durocher's pennant-hungry Giants swept a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs yesterday, 5-4 and 5-1, to chop the once succulent lead of the Brooklyn Dodgers to six games. The Dodgers split with the tail-end Pittsburgh Pirates, winning the nightcap, 4-3, in ten innings, after blowing the opener, 12-11.

Meanwhile, the American League race remained in status quo as the Cleveland Indians retained their one-game lead over the New York Yankees by splitting a doubleheader with the Boston Red Sox. The Red Sox, trailing by five games, won the first game, 5-0, but the Indians took the second, 2-1. The Yanks divided with the Chicago White Sox, losing the opener, 3-2, and winning the nightcap, 8-6.

In other American League games, the Washington Senators swept a pair from the St. Louis Browns, 9-3 and 9-1, and the Detroit Tigers defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 6-0.

Remaining National League games saw the St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves and the Philadelphia Phils and Cincinnati Reds split doubleheaders. The Cards beat the Braves, 12-10, but lost the second game, 9-1. The Phils edged the Reds, 2-0, after Cincinnati had won the first game, 4-2.

Westrum Hits Two

Two home runs by Wes Westrum and one by Don Mueller accounted for all of the Giants' runs in their first-game triumph. Westrum won the game with a two-out homer in the ninth.

Jim Hearn limited the Cubs to six hits in the nightcap as the Giants compiled their longest winning streak since the 1936 champs won 15 straight.

The Giants broke a 1-1 tie in the second game with three runs in the fourth inning on four singles and a long fly. Willie Mays stole home with the Giants' final run in the sixth.

Brooklyn blew a 9-2 lead in dropping the opener. The Pirates jumped on Don Newcombe and Clyde King for eight runs in the seventh inning with Bill Howerton's three-run homer climaxing the rally.

Dodgers Rally

The Dodgers were on the brink of another defeat in the nightcap but Andy Pafko smashed a homer with one out in the ninth to tie the score and Jackie Robinson broke it up in the tenth with a one-out homer off Ted Wilks.

Lefty Bill Wight blanked the Indians on five hits in the opener at Cleveland before 75,997 fans, largest crowd of the season. Bob Feller, gunning for his 21st victory, went down to his sixth defeat.

The Indians collected ony three hits off Leo Kieley and Ellis Kinder in the nightcap but two of them were home runs by Luke Easter and Sam Chapman. Bob Lemon, with help from Mike Garcia, gained his 16th victory.

Ed Robinson and little Nellie Fox ruined the Yanks in the opener at Chicago. Robinson homered in the eighth to tie the score at 2-2 and Fox doubled home Don Lenhardt with the winning run in the ninth.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Pitching—Niles Jordan, Phils, pitched the Philadelphia Phils to a 2-0, three-hit victory over Cincinnati in his major league debut.

Batting — Jackie Robinson, Dodgers, blasted tenth-inning homer to give Brooklyn a 4-3 triumph over Pittsburgh in second game of a doubleheader.

Colorful Show At Tonight's Game

Battery A of the 156th Field Artillery Battalion has volunteered to conduct a demonstration in conjunction with the Colonial baseball game against Gloversville tonight at municipal stadium.

According to a notice from Lt. Col. Frank W. Harkin, commandant, Lieutenant, Mathews, recently assigned to command the Battery will lead his men through a simulated battle position to demonstrate to the public the integral part played by a field artillery battery in close support of an infantry battalion as the infantry-artillery team close with the enemy.

The demonstration will start at 8 p. m. and will last for approximately 30 minutes, with the ball game following.

Great Show Promised

The demonstration promises to be an interesting one inasmuch as the Battery is prepared to display all of its combat equipment and put much of it to use that evening. The four 105mm Howitzers with their gun crews along with the Communication Team, Fire Direction Center Team, Maintenance Section, Forward Observer Section and Supply Sections will move into the park to occupy a simulated battle position as the Battalion Commander, Col. Harkin, will, by way of the public address system, explain in detail the various maneuvers of the battery. Those that will witness the demonstration will probably be amazed at the progress and training of these citizen-soldiers of the local National Guard Unit.

Another feature of the show will be the initial appearance of the 156th Battalion's Precision drill team. The drill team, under the personal instruction of the Battalion Commander, has been training for the past two weeks, preparing itself for entry into state competitions. This evening marks the team's first public appearance.

Can-Am Roundup

(By The Associated Press)

John Blanchard, a "bonus baby" who signed with the New York Yankees' chain for a reported $50,000, is using Canadian-American League pitching to slam his way back to the minors' high society.

The 18-year-old Minneapolis rookie belted two homers and a double in five trips last night to help the Amsterdam Ruggers clip the Rome Colonels, 9-1.

On Saturday, Rome pasted the Ruggers, 11-8; Oneonta outslugged Kingston, 13-8, and Pittsfield tripped Gloversville, 5-3.

Blanchard's distance hitting last night helped the Ruggers' Willard Ford, a righthander, to the victory. Ford needed help from Tom McCarthy in the eighth.

The third-place Glovers clung to their one-game lead over Amsterdam with the help of an error and a wild pitch. The Glovers got only four singles off Pittsfield's Bill Glendenning, but counted twice in the third for the winning margin. Pedro Arroyo walked, stole second and scored on Bill Long's single. Pittsfield's Bill Pope let Long's drive get by him. Long went to third and scored the deciding tally on a wild pitch.

Kingston shattered a 1-1 duel in the sixth by bunching two-baggers by Manager Johny Sosh and Dave Ocarr and a single by Gene Zubrinski.

Indian Bootleggers

Among the first bootleggers were the Tuscarora Indians, of North Carolina, who carried forbidden rum to tribes of the interior, and sold it by the mouthful. The purchaser chose the tribesman with the biggest mouth as his scale, with the rum being spewed into a bowl brought along as a receptacle.

Car Crashes Viaduct Railing

Bernard Roach of 27 Johnston avenue escaped injury about 4:30 a. m. Sunday when his automobile skidded into the railing on the north end of the Washington avenue viaduct, the sheriff's office reported. Roach reported to Deputy Sheriff Fred Bragg that the car, which he was driving, skidded on the wet pavement as he was attempting to make the right curve from Route 28 at the viaduct entrance. The railing was knocked off and the entire front end of the automobile was smashed, Deputy Bragg reported. Traffic was blocked until the vehicle could be removed, and Kingston police assisted the sheriff's department in traffic control. (James Anner Photo)

VFW Will Urge Truman's Action

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—The Veterans of Foreign Wars, here for their 52nd National Encampment, will vote tomorrow on a resolution urging President Truman to act in the case of William Oatis, Associated Press correspondent imprisoned by the Czechoslovak government on spy charges.

The VFW resolution asks that Mr. Truman appoint a committee of prominent lawyers or businessmen to investigate and recommend appropriate steps to obtain Oatis's freedom and "to prevent similar actions of this nature."

Charles C. Ralls, VFW commander-in-chief, predicted that the resolution "undoubtedly will be approved by an overwhelmingly large, if not unanimous, vote."

After a six-hour discussion yesterday, the VFW's ten-man legislative committee accorded the resolution its unanimous approval.

Would End Pussyfooting

Commenting on the resolution, Ralls said it was "time this government stopped pussyfooting with Russia and her satellites and gave Americans in those countries the protection to which they are entitled."

Ralls, 46-year-old Seattle lawyer and Marine Corps veteran, led some 75,000 VFW members and their families into New York city for the week-long convention.

Officials said the encampment, the first full-scale national VFW meeting here, may be the largest in the organization's history.

The encampment opened officially last night with a memorial service attended by about 4,000 persons in the 71st Regiment Armory.

The convention's business sessions start today.

At last night's service, red, white and blue bouquets were placed before an alter-like shrine which was lighted by candles and bore the Christian cross and the Jewish Star of David.

Delegates are expected to act on more than 400 resolutions, including one criticising President Truman's veto Aug. 6 og a bill to grant special pension allowances for blind and helpless war veterans.

Colorful Show At Tonight's Game

Battery A of the 156th Field Artillery Battalion has volunteered to conduct a demonstration in conjunction with the Colonial baseball game against Gloversville tonight at municipal stadium.

According to a notice from Lt. Col. Frank W. Harkin, commandant, Lieutenant, Mathews, recently assigned to command the Battery will lead his men through a simulated battle position to demonstrate to the public the integral part played by a field artillery battery in close support of an infantry battalion as the infantry-artillery team close with the enemy.

The demonstration will start at 8 p. m. and will last for approximately 30 minutes, with the ball game following.

Great Show Promised

The demonstration promises to be an interesting one inasmuch as the Battery is prepared to display all of its combat equipment and put much of it to use that evening. The four 105mm Howitzers with their gun crews along with the Communication Team, Fire Direction Center Team, Maintenance Section, Forward Observer Section and Supply Sections will move into the park to occupy a simulated battle position as the Battalion Commander, Col. Harkin, will, by way of the public address system, explain in detail the various maneuvers of the battery. Those that will witness the demonstration will probably be amazed at the progress and training of these citizen-soldiers of the local National Guard Unit.

Another feature of the show will be the initial appearance of the 156th Battalion's Precision drill team. The drill team, under the personal instruction of the Battalion Commander, has been training for the past two weeks, preparing itself for entry into state competitions. This evening marks the team's first public appearance.

West Shokan Wildcats retained their lead in the Olive Memorial League with a 3 to 1 decision over Camp High Point, while West Hurley blanked High Point, 12 to 0, on a one-hitter by Snipes.

The Wildcats rallied in the last two innings to shade the Point, as Harrison permitted only three hits and struck out 11. The winners collected five safeties off Sarrett.

Snipes fanned 10 in restricting High Point to one hit. Greenbergh starred at bat for West Hurley with two doubles and a single in three trips and four RBIs.

Can-Am Roundup

(By The Associated Press)

John Blanchard, a "bonus baby" who signed with the New York Yankees' chain for a reported $50,000, is using Canadian-American League pitching to slam his way back to the minors' high society.

The 18-year-old Minneapolis rookie belted two homers and a double in five trips last night to help the Amsterdam Ruggers clip the Rome Colonels, 9-1.

Blanchard, an outfielder, was signed by the Yanks for Kansas City, later served with Binghamton in class A, and now is getting his seasoning in class C.

In other sabbath sorties, the Kingston Colonials upset pennant-bound Oneonta, 4-1, and Gloversville shaded Pittsfield, 3-2.

On Saturday, Rome pasted the Ruggers, 11-8; Oneonta outslugged Kingston, 13-8, and Pittsfield tripped Gloversville, 5-3.

Blanchard's distance hitting last night helped the Ruggers' Willard Ford, a righthander, to the victory. Ford needed help from Tom McCarthy in the eighth.

The third-place Glovers clung to their one-game lead over Amsterdam with the help of an error and a wild pitch. The Glovers got only four singles off Pittsfield's Bill Glendenning, but counted twice in the third for the winning margin. Pedro Arroyo walked, stole second and scored on Bill Long's single. Pittsfield's Bill Pope let Long's drive get by him. Long went to third and scored the deciding tally on a wild pitch.

Indian Bootleggers

Among the first bootleggers were the Tuscarora Indians, of North Carolina, who carried forbidden rum to tribes of the interior, and sold it by the mouthful. The purchaser chose the tribesman with the biggest mouth as his scale, with the rum being spewed into a bowl brought along as a receptacle.

Car Crashes Viaduct Railing

Bernard Roach of 27 Johnston avenue escaped injury about 4:30 a. m. Sunday when his automobile skidded into the railing on the north end of the Washington avenue viaduct, the sheriff's office reported. Roach reported to Deputy Sheriff Fred Bragg that the car, which he was driving, skidded on the wet pavement as he was attempting to make the right curve from Route 28 at the viaduct entrance. The railing was knocked off and the entire front end of the automobile was smashed, Deputy Bragg reported. Traffic was blocked until the vehicle could be removed, and Kingston police assisted the sheriff's department in traffic control. (James Anner Photo)

VFW Will Urge Truman's Action

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—The Veterans of Foreign Wars, here for their 52nd National Encampment, will vote tomorrow on a resolution urging President Truman to act in the case of William Oatis, Associated Press correspondent imprisoned by the Czechoslovak government on spy charges.

The VFW resolution asks that Mr. Truman appoint a committee of prominent lawyers or businessmen to investigate and recommend appropriate steps to obtain Oatis's freedom and "to prevent similar actions of this nature."

Charles C. Ralls, VFW commander-in-chief, predicted that the resolution "undoubtedly will be approved by an overwhelmingly large, if not unanimous, vote."

After a six-hour discussion yesterday, the VFW's ten-man legislative committee accorded the resolution its unanimous approval.

Would End Pussyfooting

Commenting on the resolution, Ralls said it was "time this government stopped pussyfooting with Russia and her satellites and gave Americans in those countries the protection to which they are entitled."

Ralls, 46-year-old Seattle lawyer and Marine Corps veteran, led some 75,000 VFW members and their families into New York city for the week-long convention.

Officials said the encampment, the first full-scale national VFW meeting here, may be the largest in the organization's history.

The encampment opened officially last night with a memorial service attended by about 4,000 persons in the 71st Regiment Armory.

The convention's business sessions start today.

At last night's service, red, white and blue bouquets were placed before an alter-like shrine which was lighted by candles and bore the Christian cross and the Jewish Star of David.

Delegates are expected to act on more than 400 resolutions, including one criticising President Truman's veto Aug. 6 og a bill to grant special pension allowances for blind and helpless war veterans.

Assault Aircraft

"And we should work toward this end," he added.

This wouldn't mean the end of the cocky and well-trained paratrooper entirely. For paratroopers still would be needed to 'chute to the ground behind enemy lines in small numbers to prepare crude landing strips and guide the planes in.

"There will laways be some situations where paratroop jumps are needed," Wolfinbarger said, "but developing an assault landing craft would mean we could move the bulk of equipment and men by air."

Elimination of mass paratroop jumps would be another sign that the army is changing fighting habits it used extensively in World War 2. Over the weekend it was learned that the famed Rangers are being broken up and assigned to individual infantry missions.

There still will be Rangers, but they will be trained and assigned as individuals, not as units. That marks the end of an era for the daredevil boys, this country's equivalent to the dashing British Commandos. Authoritative sources here said the Rangers in Korea have ceased to exist as a unit.

But to get back to the C-122 the speedy assault aircraft—

The big ships were used to land jeeps, howitzers, and other heavy equipment during the drops of 6,000 paratroopers and their equipment in the past two days. All the ships landed safely on a makeshift landing strip and the airborne infantrymen quickly got the equipment into action.

One Killed in Jump

Hundreds of onlookers watched in horror while 20-year-old Pfc. Salvador Camarena plunged 1,200 feet to his death. His parachute failed to open. Camarena struggled to open his emergency chute, but it did not open in time.

Camarena was the lone "combat" casualty among the 110,000 men who took part in the two-weeks exercise. His mother, Mrs. Macaria Camarena, lives in Los Angeles, Calif. Thirteen other deaths during the games were attributed by the army to non-combat causes.

All Disputes Settled

"At the operational level," he said, "the army and air force have worked well together. There has been no dispute we haven't been able to settle very amicably."

Hodge declined comment on the army-air force high level dispute over the control and use of tactical air power. He said these disagreements "are above my level" and involve policy matters on which he could not comment.

Some top army men believe the air force should concentrate tactical air in close support of ground troops as the marines do. And they think the operational control of the aircraft should be in the hands of the army.

The air force does not want to give up operational control of its planes and insists the problems of tactical air support should be handled by joint control as it now is being done.

Also, the air force insists close tactical support should mean hitting enemy targets far behind the front lines as well as giving the infantry help against enemy guns, tanks and troops.

Copper Industry

als industry strike or for settling it.

Terms Are Reported

In announcing its appeal to President Truman, the union reported for the first time the terms of the government proposal, made by Cyrus Ching, director of the Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The smelter workers said the government proposed wage increases averaging 16 cents an hour and a pension plan to cost about four and a half cents an hour.

Metal Trades Council (AFL) wages in the copper industry range from $1.31 to $1.85 an hour.

The union said it wired the President:

"Refusal by Kennecott and other producers to accept the Ching proposal puts the responsibility for the shutdown on them and therefore we ask that you use your powers to have the government take over the industry immediately and put the Ching proposal into effect."

Proposal Turned Down

In Washington, mediation service officials said the meeting broke up after Kennecott officials turned down the government proposal.

A. S. Cherouny, Kennecott negotiator, said at Washington:

"The company regrets it can not agree to recommendations of the federal mediation and conciliation service.

"Acceptance * * * would establish a pattern that would impose economic burdens upon the entire non-ferrous industry.

"The company is willing to submit to the WSB, for their recommendation, the question of how far it may go in meeting union demands. It feels (the government proposal) may exceed allowable limits under existing wage stabilization rulings."

The smelter workers announced that the proposal was acceptable to the union.

Hits Big Four

The strike would hit the big four of American copper hard. They are Kennecott, Anaconda Copper Mining Company, American Smelting and Refining Company and Phelps-Dodge Copper Corporation. Also included are the Coesur D'Alene and Miami, Ariz., areas and American Brass Company plants in New York and Connecticut.

The strike was called over differences on union requests for wage increases and contract changes, principally increased pension provisions. The Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union said it asked for a general wage increase of 20 cents an hour. Package provisions—mainly pensions—would up that by around another 10 cents an hour.

The strike call includes operations in Montana, Idaho, California, Arizona, Utah, Connecticut, New York, Washington, New Jersey, Nebraska, Texas, Maryland, New Mexico and Nevada.

The Mine, Mill and Smelter headquarters said the strike was called off for 2,000 workers at the Carteret, N. J., plant of the U. S. Metal Refining Company Sunday because of an agreement providing a package pay increase between 20½ and 21 cents an hour.

The alleged new violations of Kaesong's neutral zone and the China coast, Peiping said, were designed to "menace the national security of China" and "put an end to the peace negotiations, with war."

Four-Car Collision

The police report at 11:15 a. m., said a car owned and operated by Manuel Gonzales, 29, of 124 East 117th street, New York, was struck in the rear, and three others behind were involved.

The other vehicles were operated by Allen G. Lepni, 38, of Fishkill; Lee Arrington, 1274 Stebbins avenue, Bronx; Ann R. Koehler, Cederhurst, L. I.

Reported injured in the Lepni car were Richard Whitford, 3, cut over right eye; Allen Lepni and Barbara Whitford, who reported back injuries. The Whitfords' address was given as 22 Roosevelt avenue, Poughkeepsie.

Listed as injured in the Arrington car were Mamie Arrington, 40, injuries of the back and elbow, and Leslie Neilson, 45, injuries of the mouth and left leg.

Two Others Hurt

Two other persons reported slight injuries following a mishap at Wurts and Abeel streets at 10:30 p. m. Saturday. The police report said that Patricia B. Kennedy, of Saugerties, was coming off the Rondout creek bridge when she applied the brakes as the light changed and the car "slid across Abeel street into the pole on the corner near the church."

Injuries listed were: Mrs. Clair Kennedy, nose injury, and Dean Whitman, 4, a bump on the forehead.

A report at 11:45 a. m., Sunday said Gerald Hasbrouck, 11, of 42 Broadway, riding a bicycle south on Wurts street, was struck by a car owned and operated by Harold Cole, 38, of 173 Lee avnue, Staten Island, who was headed north on Wurts street. The boy was treated at Kingston Hospital for a bruise of the right leg.

Dempsey Reappointed

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk today announced the reappointment of Stanley Dempsey, 147 Albany avenue to the city zoning board. His term is until Aug. 21, 1954. The other members of the board are Attorney Joseph Avis and Dr. Leonard A. McCambridge. The mayor returned to his desk today following a vacation of two weeks in the Adirondacks.

3. Gives the United States trusteeship control of the Ryukyu and Bonin Island instead of returning them to Japan.

4. Allows American occupation forces to stay on in Japan.

The treaty draft as written, India concluded, contains the "seeds of a new dispute" in the Far East, and at the same time fails to restore Japan to a position of "honor equality and contentment among the community of free nations."

Answering these criticisms, the State Department said in a 1,500-word note that the Japanese government and people overwhelmingly want American military protection in and around Japan.

The American reply accused India of using a curious yardstick in advocating return of the American-occupied Bonin and Rykyu Islands to Japan while at the same time complaining because Russia did not get formal title to the Kuriles and southern Sakhalin.

Macy's announcement that he would call the meeting of the newly-elected county committee on Sept. 10 spiked reports among his GOP foes that he would refuse to call a session, or at least attempt to delay it.

Macy's statement referred to the defeat of his Lieutenant E. Conway Plummer, by Hughes for the GOP county clerk nomination.

Macy said he and Plummer felt that "the full force of the state government under Gov. Dewey and his chief Lieutenant, J. Russel Sprague * * *, were leveled against us."

"The most reprehensible methods were employed against our local officials and through them upon the voters in their immediate circle," Macy said.

Korean Minister Says War Between Lord and Demons

"Korea is a heartbreaking place; there is nothing left," the Rev. Robert Chung of Seoul said during a service Sunday morning at the municipal auditorium sponsored by the First Church of the Nazarene.

The war in Korea was described by the Rev. Mr. Chung as a war of two principles: democracy and communism. "In a way," he said, "it is a war between our great Lord and the powers of demons." He urged the friends of democracy to pray more often, "so that God will know He can trust us."

The Rev. Mr. Chung described his escape from Seoul with his family just before the Communists overran that city. The Communists, he said, "are nothing but bloodthirsty war-mongers." He had spent 25 years in religious work in Korea prior to the outbreak of war.

Assault Aircraft

"And we should work toward this end," he added.

This wouldn't mean the end of the cocky and well-trained paratrooper entirely. For paratroopers still would be needed to 'chute to the ground behind enemy lines in small numbers to prepare crude landing strips and guide the planes in.

"There will laways be some situations where paratroop jumps are needed," Wolfinbarger said, "but developing an assault landing craft would mean we could move the bulk of equipment and men by air."

Elimination of mass paratroop jumps would be another sign that the army is changing fighting habits it used extensively in World War 2. Over the weekend it was learned that the famed Rangers are being broken up and assigned to individual infantry missions.

There still will be Rangers, but they will be trained and assigned as individuals, not as units. That marks the end of an era for the daredevil boys, this country's equivalent to the dashing British Commandos. Authoritative sources here said the Rangers in Korea have ceased to exist as a unit.

But to get back to the C-122 the speedy assault aircraft—

The big ships were used to land jeeps, howitzers, and other heavy equipment during the drops of 6,000 paratroopers and their equipment in the past two days. All the ships landed safely on a makeshift landing strip and the airborne infantrymen quickly got the equipment into action.

One Killed in Jump

In the parachute drop of equipment, some was badly smashed. One paratrooper was killed and 26 others hospitalized with serious injuries during the mass jumps.

Hundreds of onlookers watched in horror while 20-year-old Pfc. Salvador Camarena plunged 1,200 feet to his death. His parachute failed to open. Camarena struggled to open his emergency chute, but it did not open in time.

Camarena was the lone "combat" casualty among the 110,000 men who took part in the two-weeks exercise. His mother, Mrs. Macarla Camarena, lives in Los Angeles, Calif. Thirteen other deaths during the games were attributed by the army to non-combat causes.

All Disputes Settled

Reviewing the exercise, General Hodge told reporters the army and air force had been able to settle all their disputes amicably at the operational level.

"At the operational level," he said, "the army and air force have worked well together. There has been no dispute we haven't been able to settle very amicably."

Hodge declined comment on the army-air force high level dispute over the control and use of tactical air power. He said these disagreements "are above my level" and involve policy matters on which he could not comment.

Some top army men believe the air force should concentrate tactical air in close support of ground troops as the marines do. And they think the operational control of the aircraft should be in the hands of the army.

The air force does not want to give up operational control of its planes and insists the problems of tactical air support should be handled by joint control as it now is being done.

Also, the air force insists close tactical support should mean hitting enemy targets far behind the front lines as well as giving the infantry help against enemy guns, tanks and troops.
